Hardships Found In Flood Which Cost Lives Of 8

DAWSON CREEK, B. C., March 27.—With the known death list standing at eight, it is estimated that at least 25 persons who escaped the flood at East Pine, near here, are still marooned and in extremely destitute circumstances. So swiftly did the flood waters pour through the district that the settlers were forced to flee scantily clad and with no chance to provide themselves with food or adequate clothing.

There is no change in the situation today, the flood still being at its high point. The Orford and Madden families on the north side of the Pine River are known to have escaped, but most of their cattle and horses and all their possessions are gone. They are suffering acutely from a food shortage.

A truck loaded with volunteers and accompanied by several cars also carrying volunteers opened the road last night and early today it is hoped to establish communication with the stricken district.

Many of the settlers, however, are still marooned by flood waters and it will not be possible to effect their rescue until boats are brought in.

Assistance is on the way from outside sources and the Dawson Creek Dramatic Guild is staging an amateur play tonight, proceeds of which will be turned over to the stricken settlers.

Bert Warren, 20, was brought into Dawson Creek hospital on Sunday night suffering from frozen feet and exposure. Although suffering severely, it is expected that he will recover.

SURVIVOR OF RIVER FLOOD TELLS STORY

Member Of Ill-Fated Warren Family Relates Disaster Details

By A. CHALMERS

DAWSON CREEK, B.C., March 27.—A graphic description of what happened in the Warren home early on Saturday morning when the raging waters of Pine River swept down on the farmstead, carrying eight members of the family to their deaths, was told me by Bert Warren today.

"The first intimation of impending disaster I remember was hearing my mother scream. I jumped through the window and was caught in the whirling waters and taken around the house, where I bumped into Mr. and Mrs. Lamont," he said. "I was swept to the trees and hoisted my sister Edith up one. My father called to me to climb up myself, but I attempted escape instead and nearly lost my life until a grasped the submerged telphone line and managed to drag myself to safety."

About this time a tremendous block of ice weighing many tons struck the house and demolished it, and I think my mther and possibly others were killed at the impact. Later we searched for the baby

YULE CONCERT MURDER CASE HEARING OPEN

Wallace Mackie, Homesteader, Before Jury On Alleged Killing

Wallace Mackie, Rich Lake district homesteader, went on trial in the supreme court Monday before Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing and a jury on a charge of murdering John Horosko, neighbor-farmer, at Rich Lake on the night of December 21 last.

The alleged murder took place at a Christmas concert and dance. In a brief address to the jury opening the case for the prosecution J. W. McClung, crown prosecutor, said that on the night of the dance the deceased was found unconscious in a wagon, it being thought at the time that he had been poisoned by moonshine.

Further examination disclosed he had been struck over the head with a blunt instrument. He died from the result of this blow, he stated.

SAYS MADE THREATS

He also told of a quarrel between the accused and John Waine, district farmer and chairman of the school district, over the school teacher. He said evidence would be

CONSCRIPTION CRY HEARD IN QUEBEC AGAIN

Stand Of Minister Lapointe, Successor To Laurier, Sought

By THOMAS WAYLING

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, March 27.—The conscription cry is again being raised in Quebec and no Canadian politician has been successful in combatting that outcry. Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding is said to have lost the Liberal leadership by his attitude on conscription. Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen was unable to make any headway in Quebec on the same grounds.

What stand will Hon. Ernest Lapointe take on this paramount issue?

That is what English Canadians are asking.

Lapointe is the lineal successor of Laurier. He wears the Old Warrior's mantle.

LAURIER FARED, TOO

Yet Laurier, the most powerful statesman Quebec ever produced; whose name is still one to conjure with in the old province—could not hold his own against the conscription cry.

Mr. Lapointe thus far is silent. He intimates that he will make his posi-

FRANCO ARMS ENTER MADRID CITY SUBURBS

Only Question Of Time Now Until Surrender Made

PARIS, March 27.—The Fournier News Agency said today a Spanish Nationalist communique from Burgos announced General Franco's troops have entered the suburbs of the beleaguered city of Madrid.

A breakdown in negotiations for surrender of Madrid had sent the Nationalists in the south, under General Gonsalo Queipo De Llano, toward the rich Almaden mercury mines.

Despite this breakdown, the Madrid defence council was reported ready to surrender.

Both government and Nationalist reports at the frontier said the council had decided that if the troops had little desire to resist a Nationalist attack on Madrid when it came, surrender was the only solution.

Manning Seeks Cancellation Of Radio Patents

Cancellation of patent rights on manufacturers of radio tubes and amendment of the Patent Act will be sought in a resolution to be brought into the legislature by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry.

This resolution will be a follow-up to the report of R. J. Gaunt, solicitor to the trade and industry department, who acted as a one-man commission to investigate the radio tube price situation in this province.

The report of Mr. Gaunt was released Saturday and found that a combine exists in the radio tube business and a prosecution was recommended under this act.

The report stated that radio tubes could be sold at 40 percent less than at present and still permit a profit.

Control Of Oil Pipe Lines By Public Recommended

Advocating that there be brought into effect an unstated reduction in rates, recommendation is contained in the interim report of the Royal Commission probing the entire oil industry in this province recommends that the pipe lines from Turner Valley oil field to Calgary be placed under control of the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners.

The interim report was released on Monday by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry and provincial secretary, who authorized, last fall, the investigation by Royal Commission.

MISS JOAN ALLAN

Edmonton-Born Nurse Is Victim Of Air Disaster

Joan Allan, Who Received Her Schooling Here, Burned to Death as Plane Shakes To Pieces at Oklahoma Airport

Miss Joan Allan, 41, Edmonton born nurse, was burned to death in the Braniff Airways' plane crash at Oklahoma City early Sunday. She was a sister of William Allan, 11702 97 street, civic employee. She resided in Evanston, Ill.

Miss Allan, a former resident of this city, was on her way to Fort Worth, Texas, to bring a patient back to Evanston when the tragedy occurred. She was educated at Norwood public school and Victoria high school, and she graduated from the Saskatoon city hospital. She took a post-graduate course in nursing in Chicago.

She had been nursing at Evanston for the past 18 years.

Mr. Allan reported that his sister's body had been so badly burned that the aviation firm wired him here to determine identification. He telephoned back a description. The body was forwarded to Evanston for burial. Mr. Allan said he would leave the city Monday night to attend the funeral.

Miss Allan is survived by Mrs. George H. Cresswell and Mrs. A. Bryce, both of Edmonton; three brothers, James, street railway employee; Hugh, North Edmonton fireman, and William.

According to dispatches, Miss Allan, one of the victims had "sensed a tragic death because of a

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 27—A powerful motor which "shook to pieces" was blamed by the pilot today for the fiery crash of a twin-engined 14-passenger Braniff Airliner which killed eight persons.

Four persons, including the pilot, Capt. Claude Seaton of Dallas, escaped with injuries in the Sunday morning crash.

"The left motor shook to pieces. I tried to take it back to the field, but we couldn't," Dr. D. H. Collins quoted Seaton.

The eight killed were trapped in the plane that burst into flames.

The ship smashed into the ground just west of the municipal airport boundary lights. It just had taken off into a north wind when it radioed "Turn on lights. Returning to field."

The pilot and co-pilot were thrown from the wreckage. The two passengers who escaped alive pulled off their safety belts and struggled from the plane just as it caught fire.

The bodies of the victims were slumped in the forward part of the

Mussolini Outlines Claims on France

Il Duce Stresses Force As Key to Policy of Fascists

Colonial Problems With Neighbor Lie in Claims on Tunisia, Djibouti and Suez Canal—Makes Militant Speech

ROME, March 27.—Premier Mussolini, in a militant speech stressing force as the key of Fascist policy, publicly affirmed Sunday that Italy's colonial problem with France is her claims on Tunisia, Djibouti and the Suez canal.

Facing cheering Blackshirt followers at the celebration of the 20th anniversary of the founding of the first Fascist combat squad, Il Duce for the first time put the official stamp on the clamor for a Mediterranean readjustment raised in the now-extinct chamber of deputies last Nov. 30.

He rejected suggestions he said had been made that Italy take the first step toward solution of the long-smouldering issue and put the next move up to France.

FOREIGN POLICY

Mussolini proclaimed his Fascist foreign policy in five points:

1—Although Italy considers long peace necessary for European civilization, she refuses "solicitations" to take the first step toward peace until her "sacred rights" are recognized.

2—Italy adheres to the axis with Germany, threatens attack if a democratic coalition is formed against the authoritarian states.

3—Italy has colonial problems with France in Tunisia, Djibouti and the Suez canal of which Paris was informed in a note last Dec. 17.

4—Italy considers her interests predominant in both the Mediterranean and Adriatic seas, but does not exclude Slav interests.

5—Italy, believing force governs international relations, must arm herself with more guns, ships and airplanes even at cost of completely militarizing the country.

Four hours after Mussolini had

LIMITATION ACTIONS ACT DISALLOWED

Dominion Not To Interfere With Four Others Lapointe Says

OTTAWA, March 27.—Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, announced in the House of Commons today the government had decided to disallow an Alberta act outlawing certain debts after July 1, 1940. Four other Alberta acts similarly reviewed by the government will not be interfered with.

The acts not interfered with were: An amendment to the Debt Adjustment Act, 1937; an act suspending proceedings regarding certain types of debts; and an act increasing temporarily taxes payable by banks; and an act amending the 1929 Tax Recovery Act.

While not granting the petitions for disallowance of these bills, the government agreed with the contentions of the petitioners that the Debt Adjustment Act and the Bank Tax Act would probably be held ultra vires of the province by the courts.

Peter Verigin, Third, Exile In Siberia Named Head Of Canada Doukhobors

BRILLIANT, B.C., March 27.—Peter Verigin III, head of the Doukhobor religious section in Russia and now in Siberian exile, is the new leader of Canada's 15,000-odd Doukhobors.

The new leader was named Saturday by more than 4,000 Canadian Doukhobors closed a day-long ceremony ending six weeks' mourning for Peter Verigin II, their leader for 12 years who died in Saskatoon Feb. 7 last.

It was not immediately known whether the new leader will come to Canada, a country he had never seen although his father had been head of the Canadian Doukhobor community since 1927 when his own father, Peter Lordly Verigin, was killed in a railway coach explosion near Farron, B.C.

GRANDSON IN CHARGE

In the meantime, youthful John Verigin, grandson of Peter Verigin II, will be in charge, assisting in direction of financial affairs of the sect.

Peter Verigin III is a son of the Verigin who died last month.

Doukhobor women in gaily-colored shawls and dresses formed a procession from Brilliant to the tomb where the Verigins, father and son, lie.

MEN KISS EACH OTHER

Canadians, who watched the procession, wind slowly up the hill to the mournful chanting of the sect members, saw bearded men kiss each other in the traditional Doukhobor practice.

If less Doukhobors had attended the ceremony and had time permitted, each man present would have kissed each other man, and the women, too, would have kissed all members of their own sex. At the tomb, however, only selected Doukhobors took part in one of the most ancient customs of the group.

The spiritual leader of the Doukhobors is considered by many older members of the sect as "Christ" himself. That was the belief of many so far as Peter Petrovitch Verigin was concerned, but others claimed he was far from "Christ-like" in his use of tobacco, eating of meat and drinking of intoxicating liquors. Twice he was sentenced to prison terms and once escaped deportation by a legal manoeuvre.

CABINET QUITS IN LITHUANIA OVER CESSION

General Jonas Tsernius Is Called On To Form Government

By EDWARD W. BEATTY JR.
British United Press, Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin

KAUNAS, Lithuania, March 27—Less than a week after it had agreed to the cession of Memel to Germany at the insistant demands of Reichsfuehrer Hitler, the cabinet of Premier Vlada Mironas has resigned.

President Antanas Smetona immediately called on General Jonas Tsernius, Chief of Staff of the Lithuanian army, to form a new government, and in diplomatic circles the selection of a military leader is considered highly significant because of the danger of Nazi dominance which threatens Lithuania as a result of the return of Memel land to Germany.

THE DIFFICULTIES

The resignation followed hard on the heels of reports that the Mironas government was in difficulties in attempting negotiations with Herr Willy Bertuleit, Nazi president of the Memel Directory, and that the Lithuanian foreign ministry was having trouble in working out the details of the cession of Memel to the Reich.

The Mironas cabinet was also in the middle of negotiating with former opposition parties in an attempt to establish a "common patriotic front," which involved reconstruction of the cabinet to admit new representation.

STRENGTHEN RESISTANCE

The formation of a strong military cabinet government is considered necessary by Lithuanian leaders who are showing a tendency to strengthen their resistance to further German demands since the democratic powers have come out so strongly against further German aggression.

The Mironas cabinet was requested to remain in office until General Tsernius completes formation of a new government which is expected to embrace all parties and present a strong united front to further moves of aggression.

NO INTENTION OF IMPOSING NAZI BOYCOTT

Britain Also Rejects the League of Nations Penalties On Germany

LONDON, March 27.—The British government has no intention of imposing an economic boycott or taking retributive measures against Germany, Richard Butler, foreign under-secretary, announced in the House of Commons today.

The government also rejected suggestions of attempts to apply League of Nations penalties to halt German territorial expansion.

Mr. Butler told the house that Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, was "unable to consider" steps which Morgan Price, Labor, suggested should be taken "with American co-operation to apply economic sanctions against future disturbers of peace in Europe."

RETAINS INDEPENDENCE

Prime Minister Chamberlain, meanwhile, told the house Rumania "has not signed away her economic independence" in her new trade agreement with Germany. He declared Rumania still is anxious that plans for sending of a British trade mission to Bucharest should be confirmed and added: "That, of course, is our intention."

Vyvyan Adams, Conservative, asked whether it was the long range objective of His Majesty's government to restore independence to that part of Czecho-Slovakia which survived the Munich agreement.

Mr. Chamberlain pointed out he already had branded German absorption of Czecho-Slovakia as "devoid of any legality" and added: "I am not prepared to add to this statement."

NO PROTEST

He said Great Britain was making no protest over Germany's annexation of Memel.

He was unable to make any comment on the progress of negotiations for an anti-aggression pact.

The prime minister said Chancellor Hitler's destruction of Czecho-Slovakia "was unfortunately inconsistent with his pledge to him at Munich to renounce force in favor of consultation. The Fuehrer's action raised the question of whether, and since could be placed in his assurances, the prime minister said.

NO POLITICAL CLAUSES

He added it was too early to draw exact conclusions from the German-Rumanian treaty, but the Rumanian foreign minister had claimed it contained no political clauses and that it would not sign away Rumania's political independence.

Mr. Price made the suggestion of American co-operation "in view of the friendly reply received from the American government indicating willingness to co-operate in the economic activities of the league." His reference was to a United States note to the league secretary Feb. 22 promising greater collaboration with the league's technical and non-political activities.

Mr. Butler indicated the U.S. collaboration and in non-political work seemed to exclude economic penalties.

EXPRESSED SYMPATHY

Replying to further questions, Mr Butler said Britain had expressed to the Lithuanian government her sympathy in the situation in which the Lithuanian government has been placed; by the return of Memel to Germany.

Mr. Chamberlain was asked whether he did not feel he should not "get in touch with Herr Hitler to try to obtain" the Fuehrer's "personal explanation" of the crushing of Czecho-Slovakia.

NO USEFUL PURPOSE

He did not think any useful purpose would be served by so doing," the prime minister answered.

Mr. Chamberlain in his reply on Rumania stated the Rumanian government "has informed the British government that the agreement concluded by political clause and Rumania has not signed away her economic independence."

gation District, was named administrator.

An interim report was filed by the auditor, which, so far as can be learned was the one on which the government settlement was based.

The Premier in his statement said, in part that "The provincial auditors, in auditing the books and accounts of the E.I.D. found and reported serious irregularities by the manager of board of trustees in the formation of subsidiary companies as well as the transactions carried on by these companies since their formation.

Writing of the affairs of the Irrigation Development Land Company, a subsidiary of the main holding company, Mr. Laing writes that:

ACCOUNTS EXAMINED

"The Irrigation Development Land Company Ltd., was formed in January, 1936, with the object of handling and disposing of certain lands in the district. The company's capital consists of a nominal number of shares issued to individuals who are district officials. Operations of the company have been limited to transactions on behalf of the Eastern Irrigation District. The accounts of the company were examined in conjunction with the audit of the Eastern Irrigation District and all information and explanations were obtained.

"Loans made to the company were offset by lease revenue collected by the district in respect of company owned lands."

The report discloses that while the subsidiary had a book deficit of $1,137.94 for the period of three years, the E.I.D. still owes the common carriers in respect to the gathering, transporting and delivery of petroleum and petroleum products by pipe line between Turner Valley and Calgary.

They also recommended the legislature declare all of the assets of the Royalite and Imperial used for pipe line purposes be under the regulation and control of the Board of Public Utility commissioners.

"As to the proposal that these companies be declared to be common carriers, a company which enjoys statutory rights in respect of the carriage of oil by pipe line in our opinion cannot be heard to complain that pipe line is made available to all users at all times on such terms and if it is made subject to the laws of the land which relate to all common carriers of every kind and description," the report said.

NEED CUT RATES

Extent of the reduction in pipe line rates gave the commission "grave concern," said the report. The commissioners stated they had studied the evidence and were in no doubt "as to the need for, and the fairness of, a reduction in the pipe line rate."

The report stated:

"Your commissioners bear in mind that in reporting as to what is, in their opinion, a fair and equitable rate for the conveying, transporting and handling of oil by pipe line, they must not lose sight of the fact that for a rate to be fair and equitable it must be fair and equitable to the corporations concerned, as well as those persons they are called upon to deal.

"If the recommendations of your commissioners before set forth are accepted, it is true that these corporations will retain the naked, legal title to all pipe line assets, but the right to use them in such fashion as they may deem wise and the right to make such profits out of them as they are now able to do are not available.

NEEDS CONSIDERATION

"While your commissioners are definitely of the opinion that the present dates should not continue for any less they feel that they cannot, in good conscience and in fairness to the companies concerned, recommend the date on which the reductions should be made without further consideration.

"In our judgment, that there may not be a year's delay in putting into effect such recommendation of your commissioners as may be made with respect to the pipe line rate, if such recommendation is considered worthy of acceptance, your commissioners respectfully recommend that the legislature be invited to give statutory authority and jurisdiction to the board of public utility commissioners to accept and forthwith put into effect the pipe line rate recommended by your commissioners, and when such rate is approved by the lieutenant-governor-in-council."

CARRIED IN PIPE

Oil from Turner Valley, 45 miles southwest of Calgary, in the main, was transported to Calgary by pipe line of the Royalite Oil Company, a subsidiary of Imperial Oil Ltd. Some of the oil, the commissioners pointed out, also is transported by tank truck.

"It is also worthy of note that, while facilities are available in the Imperial Oil Company's yard for loading tank cars, no racks or other facilities are available for loading into truck tanks. In the opinion of your commissioners, these should be provided," said the report.

"Your commissioners are of the opinion that all persons desirous of transporting oil from Turner Valley field by pipe line, who are free to do so under the law, should be at liberty to do so through existing pipe lines and not be subject to the decision of the Royalite Oil Company Ltd., or Imperial Oil Ltd., or the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey as to whether or not such oil should be transported," it stated.

TO MAKE DELIVERY

The report stated:

"Your commissioners are of the opinion that it is the proper function of a common carrier of oil by pipe line not only to receive the oil in the field and to transport it through its pipe line, but also make delivery.

"It follows that in this view one rate should be fixed for the whole operation, including storage to the extent that storage is incidental to delivery.

"Your commissioners think that the making of delivery of oil as a separate operation for which a separate charge is made by the refinery company, Imperial Oil, Ltd., to other refineries at such rate as it may see fit to impose, gives to Imperial Oil Ltd., as a refinery, an undue advantage over other refineries and the power to increase pipe line charges to all users of the pipe line to such extent as the company desires without seeming to touching the pipe line rates."

The commissioners recommended a new system of three classes of accounting should be established by the board of public utility commissioners to determine pipe line operating costs.

Next Step Radio Tube Inquiry Is Up To Aberhart

OTTAWA, March 27.—F. A. McGregor, commissioner of the Combines Investigation Act, indicated today the next step in connection with the radio tube probe of H. G. Gount, Alberta special commissioner, was up to Premier Aberhart as provincial attorney-general.

There were two courses open to Mr. Aberhart, Mr. McGregor said. He can either institute legal proceedings under section 498 of the criminal code, which is similar to

Telford Raps Coast Defence Pair Pop-Guns

OTTAWA, March 27—Mayor Lyle Telford of Vancouver in an interview here today rapped the defence of his home city.

"We have a few pop guns in the parks but we would be lucky if they did not kill the men who were trying to fire them," he said.

"I'm not a military man but I will say this: any defences will have to start not on the shore but away out in the Pacific."

The mayor, who flew from the west coast Saturday on a Trans Canada Airlines' goodwill flight, is conferring with government officials here concerning unemployment problems and details of the visit of the King and Queen to Vancouver.

"I then saw my father clinging to a tree with water about his neck. My brother-in-law, Frank Parr, endeavored to rescue Dad but he could not pry him loose from the tree, as Dad was a very strong man and hung on. He went for help but on returning with help Dad was gone.

"My brotherin-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Lamont very nearly reached safety with their oldest son in his father's arms. Suddenly my sister fell and a fence wire under water tangled Lamont's legs, in endeavoring to save his wife he dropped the boy who was drowned."

SEARCH WATER

Allen Warren, Constables Watt and Quesnel, and others have been searching the water for bodies feeling around with poles, and wading in the water with ropes around their waists. Allen Warren found the body of Don Lamont.

The Warrens speak highly of the work done by two B.C. police constables. Eye witnesses state the ice jam is now about forty feet high.

The Rosenthal brothers were released yesterday, they were standing in water over their backs when the ice was finally chopped away enough to release them. Two of the horses were wedged in by piled ice blocks in a space no larger than a double horsestall.

DOMINION IS DESTINED AS BREAD BASKET

OTTAWA, March 27. — Canada cannot support a dense population, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, told the Canadian club here Saturday.

Like most northern countries, her productiveness was confined to only a portion of the year because of the climate. World history showed that northern countries in Europe and Asia had never been able to support a dense population.

Canada, as a wheat producing country, was therefore destined to supply the role of "bread basket" to the over-populated countries rather than to absorb the overflow of population from other lands.

Mr. Gardiner suggested the unemployment problem might be solved in part by putting people to work on development of such natural resources as gold mining and lumbering. He made a plea for a return to the land, pointing out that some of the richest agricultural areas in Canada supported 30 per cent fewer people than 30 years ago.

NANCHANG IS CAPTURED BY JAP TROOPS

SHANGHAI, March 27.—The Hankow headquarters of the Japanese army reported today the capture of Nanchang, one an important Chinese air base at Klangsi province.

Chinese earlier had reported a "brilliant counter-thrust" northwest of Nanchang had pushed back advancing Japanese troops in fighting that took the lives of 1,000 Japanese and 500 Chinese.

Japanese yesterday began a siege of the city, 170 miles southeast of Hankow, against strong Chinese resistance.

The Chinese reports said their air force had bombed Japanese positions along the Siao river, inflicting many casualties and shooting down three Japanese planes.

adduced that the accused had made threats against Waine.

During the dance, continued Mr. McClung, the deceased went out to change his shoes, and his prolonged absence excited the curiosity of his friends. He was found in a wagon holding his head and groaning. He was unconscious and died next morning.

The preliminaries of swearing in the jury were quickly disposed of, the defence challenging one juror, while the crown asked that eight stand aside. The jury sworn were: Wellington Glen. Tuffield; H. C. Shiplett, Edmonton; R. G. Mulligan, Bon Accord; A. S. Donald, Edmonton; Hugh Richardson, R.R. 2, South Edmonton; Percy Sanders, R.R.S., South Edmonton.

Counsel for the accused are Hugh Cameron Macdonald, K.C., and Walter Beaumont

CAUSE OF DEATH

First witness called was Dr. C. Lefebvre, Lac La Biche, who testified that the cause of death was a fracture of the skull.

Other crown witnesses testified that there had been "bad blood between the accused, John Waine and that on October 17 at a dance at Lac La Biche Waine and the accused had clashed. It was common knowledge that the accused was afraid of Waine.

John H. Waine testified that he had trouble with the accused, but that he did not "tangle" with him at the Lac La Biche dance, but had just brushed him aside after asking him why he had said "he was not the boss at his farm".

He said he was not "sore" at the accused because he had "cut him out with the school teacher". He told the court that he and the teacher had parted company before the teacher and accused started "going out together." The hearing is proceeding.

Perfect Hand Is Dealt At Bridge Game

PEACE RIVER, March 27. — Joe Phillippe joined the ranks of the bridge immortals last week while engaged in his first effort at contract bridge with Urquhart Adams, Charles Carter and V. Hackworth, when he was dealt a hand containing 13 diamonds.

Thereby hangs a tale, as Joe always played auction bridge so to make sure he would get the bid he opened with five diamonds, was raised to five hearts and after carefully considering his hand, decided to bid six diamonds, and now he is joyfully telling his friends he made a grand slam.

All participants confirm the "one-in-a-million" delivery while the mine run of contract bridge players in town bemoan the fact that Lady Luck moved her pawns into the hands of a novice.

Yet Lapointe is one of the most loyal Canadians since Confederation. He is heart, soul, body and mind for the British tie. Yet he is big enough to reject with scorn any idea that Quebec shall take all from England and give nothing in return.

Lapointe can not consider conscription for a moment. Yet there are many who believe that the heart of Quebec is sound, and given the right leadership, the right rallying cry she will line up with the rest of Canada not only for the defence of the Dominion but aid for the Mother Country should the Old Land come under the attack of the aggressor.

The lights went on. The plane started to glide in. Then suddenly it plummetted to earth, exploding and bursting into flames.

Hitler's Sweeping Gains Sets Nazi Pride High Mast

Are Hitler's sweeping gains in Europe all profit? What are the burdens he has shouldered and what do they mean in the event of war? Louis Lochner, chief of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press analyzes the assets and liabilities of greater Germany in the following dispatch.—EDITOR.

BY LOUIS LOCHNER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

BERLIN, March 26—German pride never was higher than it is today.

With the formal signature this week of treaties with Lithuania, Slovakia and Rumania, Chancellor Hitler crowned his quick-moving expansion of Germany. In his 10-day record of success he:

1—Places 7,000,000 Czechs directly under his rule.

2—Brought 150,000 Memel Germans "home into the Reich."

3—Reduced Slovakia and Lithuania to the status of economic dependencies and gave Germany a strategic foothold in the Eastern Baltic.

4—Set Rumanians to work exploiting agricultural, mineral, timber and oil wealth for the benefit of Germany.

BRITAIN DERIDED

Great Britain from the German point of view has become an object of derision with her 11th hour attempt to organize a "Stop Hitler" movement. France is regarded as a mere second fiddle. And even Italy is considered merely the junior partner of the Rome-Berlin axis.

In the eyes of German economists, the peaceful penetration of Rumania stands forth as most important of all the accretions of power, influence, population and territory in the 10 days which ended last Thursday.

Authorities believe that by throwing herself so completely into the arms of Germany, Rumania among other things has done the following:

1—She destroyed British hopes for gaining a decisive influence in the Balkans.

2—She rendered the efficacy of the Polish-Rumanian alliance doubtful and thereby weakened appreciably the Polish state in its effort to keep clear of German domination.

3—She became a source of raw materials for Germany than which an African colony could do no better.

4—She brought the Ukraine, long the object of German dreams of expansion, appreciably nearer to Berlin.

A careful reading of the published synopsis of the German-Rumanian trade treaty discloses it is a masterpiece of German strategy.

NOW ILLUSION

The idea of an economic blockade of Germany is rendered illusory. Germany soon will have her fingers so deep in Rumania's economic and industrial life the influence of other foreign nations there will become negligible.

With conclusion of Rumania, Slovak and Lithuanian treaties, with the subjugation of Bohemia and Moravia, and with the reacquisition of Memel, Germany effectively rendered Soviet Russia innocuous for herself.

Trained German observers assert It is only a question of time before Poland must yield the Free City of Danzig, Pomorze (the Polish Corridor) Pomerellen and the rich industrial areas of Polish Silesia all part of Germany or Austria before the great war.

Militant Duce

spoken, the government divulged both a congratulatory telegram Reichsfuehrer Hitler sent yesterday and Mussolini's answer.

Why Hitler's message had been withheld from publication earlier remained a mystery. In some informed quarters it was thought Mussolini might have wanted to subordinate it to his speech in order to avoid any suggestion Hitler inspired Fascist policy.

The Fuehrer's telegram declared the German people were "filled with the same ideals" as Italians and "stand shoulder to shoulder with the the battle-proved Italian nation in defence against all hateful and incomprehensible attempts to restrict the justified will for living of our two people and to shake the peace of the world."

Mussolini replied:

THANKS FROM DUCE

"I thank you for your message and telegram which you sent me on the celebration of the first 20 years of Fascism.

"A new conception of life joins our two revolutionary movements, destined to crack the reactionary and conservative positions of the old world and to eliminate, at the same time, the dangers of Bolshevist ideology.

"That will happen for the good of our two peoples and for peaceful development—a new foundations—of European civilization."

The first reaction in diplomatic circles to Il Duce's speech was divided between unpleasant surprise by some observers at Il Duce's acceptance of the policy foreign relations are founded on force, and relief, expressed by others, at what they considered a conciliatory gesture toward France.

FALL OF MADRID

This conciliatory tone they found in Mussolini's statement that the imminent fall of Madrid to Spanish Nationalists would "demolish" a barricade of opposite sympathies between Paris and Rome in the Spanish civil war.

Although the diplomatic corps was invited to the great mass demonstration in the Mussolini forum, neither French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet nor William Phillips, United States ambassador, attended. Phillips had a cold.

Mussolini's strong tone was discounted partly in political quarters as being necessary in addressing veterans of his Fascist combat squads who would expect martial words.

It was noted with satisfaction by diplomats Mussolini had excluded Corsica and Nice in mentioning Italy's "natural aspirations."

The names of both French territories were raised by deputies in the outburst almost four months ago.

Mussolini refrained from making any territorial demands nor did he even intimate Italian troops would try to occupy any French soil as the German army did in Czecho-Slovakia.

"In the Italian note of Dec. 17, 1938, the Italian problems with France were clearly set forth, problems of a colonial character," he said.

"These problems have a name. They are called Tunisia, Djibouti, and the Suez canal.

"The French government is perfectly free to refuse us even the simplest discussion of these problems as it has done up to now through its too-often-repeated and (perhaps) too categorical 'jamais' (never).

"But it cannot complain later if the ditch which now separates the two countries becomes so deep that filling it becomes hard work, if not impossible.

HEAR NO MORE

"No matter how things go we wish to hear no more about brotherhood, sisterhood, cousins and other such bastard relationships because relationships between states are relations of force and these relations of force are the determining elements of their policy."

Mussolini excused Germany's dissolution of Czecho-Slovakia and not only refused to join in the displeasure of London and Paris at Germany's eastward advance through Czecho-Slovakia but also warned Italy and Germany would attack Britain and France if they formed a coalition against the dictatorships. He said:

FATED TO HAPPEN

". . . I am here to tell you in the most explicit manner that what happened in central Europe was fated to happen.

"I declare that if the great democracies weep bitterly over the premature and somewhat dishonorable end of what was their dearest creature, this is a perfect reason for us not to associate ourselves with their more or less decent tears.

"I add that if the problem be placed on the level of morals, nobody—I say nobody—has the right to throw the first stone as the ancient and modern history of Europe abundantly demonstrates.

"I say that when a people which had very many men and immense arsenals is not capable of a gesture, this demonstrates that it is overripe for its new fate.

"And I say that if the longed-for constitution of a coalition against the authoritarian regimes should come about, these regimes would take up the challenge and would pass from defence to counter-attack at all points."

HITLER PARTNERSHIP

In his partnership with Hitler, Mussolini maintained for Italy predominant interests in both the Mediterranean and Adriatic seas but he reassured Yugoslavia of the safety of her Adriatic interests by saying Italy's were "not exclusive as regards the Slavs."

Reminding his Blackshirts that the dictum "believe, obey . . . fight . . . was, is and will be the [illegible] of every victory," Il Duce paid this tribute to force:

"We must arm. The watchword is this: More cannons, more ships, more airplanes, at whatever cost, with whatever means, even if it should mean wiping out all that is called civil life.

"When one is a strong one is dear to one's friends and feared by one's enemies. Since prehistoric times the shout has come down on the waves of centuries and the series of generations: 'Woe to the weak!'

Although he declared Fascism considers "a long period of peace necessary to safeguard Europe and the development of European civilization," he characterized "professional Pacifists" as "detestable individuals" and declared "we consider perpetual peace as a catastrophe for human civilization."

Nazis Disclaim Any Moves Against Poland

BERLIN, March 27—A disclaimer of any Nazi intentions of aggression against uneasy Poland was voiced today by the semi-official mouthpiece of the German foreign office.

Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, which often reflects the view of the foreign office, at the same time gave Poland a veiled warning she should not become too friendly with her eastern neighbor, Soviet Russia.

In denying any hostile designs on Poland the publication took cognizance of reports from abroad which arose in connection with the long-standing question of Danzig and the Polish corridor after incorporation of Memel into expanding Germany.

These reports have been coupled with the prediction by trained German observers that Poland soon would have to yield to Germany the Free City of Danzig, the Polish corridor which separates East Prussia from the rest of the Reich, Pomerelien and the rich industrial areas of Polish Silesia—all parts of Germany or Austria before the Great War.

Chancellor Hitler meanwhile went to Munich and it is expected he would continue on to his Tyrolean chalet at Berchtesgaden to rest.

One political source commenting on Mussolini's Rome speech declared he had more clearly defined the "historical demands" of Italy regarding Tunisia, Djibouti and the Suez Canal so "the possibility of evading an answer hardly exists any longer" on the part of France.

Especially welcomed here, this source said, was renewed evidence before the world "of the complete unity of policy of the axis powers."

The anti-British tone of the speech was expected to meet with general high favor in view of the German campaign against Britain's "stop Hitler" drive.

Hitler Reaffirms His Loyalty To Mussolini

BERLIN, March 27.—Chancellor Hitler, on the eve of Premier Mussolini's speech to celebrate Fascism's 20th anniversary, sent Il Duce a telegram Saturday declaring that "the German nation stands shoulder to shoulder with the battle-proved Italian people in defence against all hateful and incomprehensible attempts to restrict the justified will for living of our two peoples and to shake the peace of the world."

He said he thought of Mussolini "in friendship as the victorious creator of a proud new Italy."

The telegram read:

"On the 20th anniversary of the foundation of the Fascist fighting units, I think of you in hearty and true friendship as the victorious creator of a proud new Italy.

"Filled with the same ideals, the German people stand shoulder to shoulder with the battle-proved Italian nation in defence against all hateful and incomprehensible attempts to restrict the justified will for living of our two peoples and to shake the peace of the world."

Daladier Maps Reply To Mussolini Demands

PARIS, March 27. — Premier Edouard Daladier mapped a reply today to Premier Mussolini's African demands—a reply designed to permit opening negotiations for a French-Italian settlement.

Soucos close to Daladier said the reply would take one of two forms: either a direct note to Rome through regular diplomatic channels, asking Italy just what she wants, or a similar question to be put in a broadcast speech next Wednesday.

Reconciliation appeared to be closer than at any time since Dec. 17 when Mussolini denounced the 1935 treaty which he initiated at Rome with Pierre Laval, then the French premier.

HOPES RETARDED

Although Mussolini's speech yesterday was far from specific on what he wants in Africa, hopes for reconciliation were retarded by the French fear that Mussolini later would ask that Daladier's government, backed by the nation, has said could not and would not be granted:

1—Territorial concession.

2—Rights in Tunisia, French North African protectorate, beyond those granted to Italy in the 1935 treaty.

Mussolini pointed out that in the denunciation of the 1935 treaty "Italian problems with France were clearly set forth, problems of a colonial character.

"These problems have a name," he said. "They are called Tunisia, Djibouti and the Suez Canal."

Unofficial contact between Italy and France, it has been said, already has shown France was ready to consider the free passage for Italians at Djibouti, French Somaliland capital on the Gulf of Aden and terminus of a railway from Ethiopia, and a greater share in control of the Suez canal.

Thus, unless Italy demanded territory or asked to go a great distance beyond the 1935 provisions regarding Italian rights in Tunisia, France was likely to go far in trying to meet Il Duce's wishes.

Only a portion of the extreme press urged Italians to open immediate negotiations with Il Duce. Some newspapers urged him to wait until the Italians had put their demands in more concise form.

LONG LIST OF SUBJECTS TO BE DEBATED

Premier King To Outline Additional Legislation Monday

OTTAWA, March 27.—Parliament today started what promises to be an eventful week with members likely debating a variety of important subjects ranging from the new agricultural program to international affairs.

An indication of the length of the session probably will be given this afternoon, when Prime Minister Mackenzie King outlines the additional legislation the government plans to introduce before prorogation. There is a growing impression parliament will be prorogued by the King while he is in Ottawa in May.

PRESENT FOUR BILLS

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, and Hon. W. D. Euseler, minister of trade, between them plan to present four bills to the house which will cover the government's whole agricultural program for 1939-40.

It is expected the measures will include encouragement of co-operative marketing of wheat through the western pools, a form of crop insurance with an acreage bonus in poor crop districts, continuation of the Canadian wheat board and regulation of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange by the board of grain commissioners.

PREMIER TO ELABORATE

The international situation will be debated in detail if the external affairs estimates come up for division and the prime minister will elaborate on his statement made a year ago involving the Empire. A full-dress debate on foreign policy will be precipitated.

A heavy program of committee work is scheduled for this week with the radio committee continuing its review of Canadian Broadcasting Corporation activities and the public accounts committee holding further hearings concerning government arms contracts.

LIMIT LIABILITY

The government plans to introduce legislation to limit liability in air crashes. The proposed bill would give effect to the Warsaw convention of 1929 which has been adopted by most European countries and applies generally to international air travel.

Unification of rules relating to international carriage by air is another purpose of the measure, details of which will not be disclosed until it is introduced in the house.

SIX ARE KILLED IN COLLISION WITH BUS-AUTOMOBILE

LOS ANGELES, March 27.—Six persons were killed and a seventh was injured fatally in a collision between a bus and an automobile on Valley boulevard east of here on Sunday.

Ten other passengers on the bus were injured, some of them seriously.

W. B. R. Williams, police ambulance driver, reported the driver of the automobile apparently turned in front of the heavy bus loaded with passengers. He said the bus was overturned and demolished.

Airmen Simply Couldn't Follow Einstein Theory In Flying of Airplanes

United Press
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

NEWARK, N.J., March 27—Prof. Albert Einstein, who deals in abstractions of time and space, saw a sleeper airplane for the first time Wednesday night at Newark airport.

The plane's altimeter caught his attention.

Harry Aston, airport publicity man, told him that the new radio altimeter would show the plane's height above the ground at all times.

"Please explain," said Professor Einstein.

Aston said the altimeter sent an electrical impulse from plane to ground and that the time of transit was translated into feet.

"What's this about a time element?" the inventor of the theory of relativity asked.

"Well, said Aston, "the time it takes for the impulse to travel is known, and that gives the distance . . .

"Ya, no," Einstein interrupted, "the sun goes around the earth. That would be like X."

Aston interposed that the airport had some detailed pamphlets that explained the altimeter and if the professor would just . . .

"No. No pamphlets, please. I want you to explain."

Aston began bravely on the theory of radio, but he was interrupted again.

"Let me explain, please," Einstein said benignly. "The sun going around the earth is like X. Now you tell me the airplane is going 190 miles an hour. That would be a second. Now when you consider C. That would mean a particle of C in relation to X in relation to"—

Aston hurried off after a pamphlet.

Peptona Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did — even look healthy and strong, yet — you may not feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Honest Men Differ

Mr. G. G. McGeer, member for Vancouver-Burrard, did a public service when he asked Mr. Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, to suggest what effective steps can be taken to meet the situation presented by Canada's existing debt, the need of heavy expenditure for defence, and the prospective increase in the cost of government.

Mr. Towers is expected to tell the banking and commerce committee of parliament in a day or so what he thinks could be done. Meanwhile, Canadians in and out of parliament should make up their minds on one point; that whatever Mr. Towers' views may be he should not be attacked for stating them. He hasn't broken the proprieties by offering gratuitous advice; he has been asked to tell parliament what he thinks.

If there is one subject on which the people of this Dominion hold widely divergent views it is that of financial policy. And we have developed a somewhat general tendency to challenge the motives of anyone whose views do not happen to coincide with our own. Whatever Mr. Towers may say, a good many people are not going to agree with him. May it be hoped that whoever disagrees will remember abuse is not argument, except in the sense that it argues mental bankruptcy on the part of the abuser.

Just Diplomatic Pretence

Commissioner Goldenberg says it will not be necessary for Winnipeg to continue to pay $1,300,000 into its sinking fund per year because the $31,000,000 now in the fund, with interest at 5 per cent, compounded, will amount to more than the $59,000,000 debt when this matures fourteen years hence.

The Commissioner must be in an optimistic mood if he imagines that sinking funds can really earn 5 per cent net over the next fourteen years, and that yearly interest payments can also be invested to earn the same rate. The thing is so improbable as to suggest another explanation.

What must have impressed the investigator is the fact that in order to pay the $1,300,000 into the sinking fund Winnipeg had to pile up an overdraft at the bank of $1,000,000 per year. He probably argued that the bond-holders may better take chances on what the sinking fund will amount to when the bonds fall due than force the city into bankruptcy and have to take what a government receiver would give them. And that is sound sense.

The notion that the taxpayers of municipalities whose debentures are held by sinking fund boards can or will go on paying five per cent interest over the next fourteen years is an illusion that even the Goldenbergs and the Bradshaws can no longer seriously entertain, though they may not think it politic to admit the point. The idea that sinking fund earnings can be invested in future to earn that rate is still wilder. Even Fortin does not believe that.

Time For a Change

Edmonton's senior and junior Chambers of Commerce, the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Motor Association, the Northern Alberta Fish and Game League and the National Parks Highway Association have joined in making representations to the Dominion Government and the management of the National Railways on the subject of urgently needed improvements in the town of Jasper and in Jasper Park.

What these bodies are particularly concerned about is the situation which will arise a year from the coming summer, when the Jasper-Banff highway is completed and motor tourists in thousands make the trip through the famous ice-fields where the Saskatchewan and Athabasca start their journeys to Hudson Bay and the Arctic Ocean and the Columbia draws water which it empties into the Pacific. How poorly Jasper is prepared to accommodate this prospective flood of visitors is sufficiently suggested in the fact that there is not even an official information bureau maintained there, while last summer—with relatively few motor tourists from distant points—the town was so crowded at times that people had to sleep in motor cars and garages.

While the Jasper-Banff highway has been in course of construction, hundreds of thousands of dollars of public money has been spent in the erection of buildings, the creation of tourist attractions and the betterment of highways in and around the town of Banff. But absolutely nothing has been spent during these years for these purposes in Jasper or around it.

The settled policy of the Parks Administration—if it has had any policy at all—has been that Jasper should be nothing more than an annex to Banff, and a turn-around place where motorists coming from the south will double back on their trail. That notion has outlived any usefulness it ever had, and if the Government cannot inject a new idea into the heads of the departmental bureaucracy it ought to put some new officials on the job.

The memorandum sent to Ottawa by the organizations cited deals only with improvements which are required at Jasper to make up for years of neglect or official discrimination. If it is plainly worded, the language does not in any adequate way express the resentment of people in this section of Alberta against the long-continued mis-treatment of the largest and most beautiful of Canada's national parks. And it so happens that the section of Alberta which is contiguous to Jasper Park contains two-thirds of the people of the province, who pay a good deal more than two-thirds of the amount of Alberta tax-money that is spent in park development.

Editorial Notes

Figures cited in the legislature showed that in 1931 the estimated debts of Alberta farmers totalled $317,800,000, of which $21,000,000 represented amounts owing on machinery. That helps to correct a somewhat current impression that machinery debts make up the big item in farm debts. The showing is that for every dollar he owed in that year on implements, the farmer owed $15 for land, buildings, stock, and other things.

The Fascist Grand Council has issued a warning to the democratic states that to form a united front to the totalitarian states "would be a harbinger of war". All the other nations have to do is hand over their property on demand to the totalitarians—as Czecho-Slovakia did—and there won't be any war. It hardly needed a pronouncement from the Grand Council to acquaint the world with that truism; the proposition is self-proving. But the thing won't happen, and the Grand Council should be told so in set terms.

The railway situation in the North West is reaching so critical a stage that public opinion is slowly being mobilized in protest against a policy which is hampering the developing of this territory. A meeting of citizens in J. Beaudry's store passed an emphatic resolution urging that similar centres of population urge upon eastern Canada the need of immediate action to provide this area with adequate railway facilities.

New York: Twelve people were killed in a huge fire that made a torch out of one of the big buildings in the heart of the city. Two firemen fighting the blaze were numbered among the dead.

T. C. Holmes came in from the north and reported that the trip there was the most easy in many years, the weather being ideal. He is on his way to the United States for a brief holiday, prior to going back north.

A meeting of sport clubs in the city laid the first plans for sponsoring special athletic competitions. A feature of the plan is that it will not be limited to picked teams but will be designed to provide as much athletic recreation as is possible for school children as a whole, and younger members of the community. It is hoped that a gala sports carnival will climax these events later in the year.

Paris: English and French diplomats are reported to be showing increasing concern at the rumors that the United States Senate will likely be highly critical of the financial provisions of the Peace settlement and may actually refuse to ratify it at all. Such a decision would destroy much of the basis upon which the treaties rest and endanger peace. President Wilson, however, is said to feel that the situation is not as critical as represented.

In view of horrified spectators in the Calder district, the instructional Moth biplane owned by the Edmonton Aero Club fluttered out of the sky Monday morning and crashed between a line of box cars and the coal dump in the C.N.R. yards. W. B. Brinkman, pilot, and J. S. Clare, a pupil-passenger, were injured.

Washington: A strong protest by the British and Canadian Governments against the sinking last Friday in the Gulf of Mexico of the schooner I'm Alone by the coastguard cutter Dexter is expected if warranted by facts disclosed in official reports of the incident. The vessel, though British-owned was of Canadian registry, and is said to have been engaged in rum-running.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

With refugees pouring into England from the Continent a booklet or "Code of Conduct" has been issued by the Council for German Jewry and associated bodies, giving advice to the refugees. It reads in part:

ADVICE TO IMMIGRANTS

"The British Government is very sympathetic to the tragedy of refugees from Greater Germany and other countries, but you must realise that the maintenance of refugees must be borne by the Jewish community, and not by the British taxpayer.

"It must not be said that the refugees are taking work away from British workers.

"You must not accept any employment, paid or unpaid, or engage in any business or profession without written permission from the Aliens Department of the Home Office. You must not be a 'volunteer' (unpaid worker) without such permission.

"Nor may you take permitted work at a wage less than the customary wage.

"The Home Office will always give consideration to the cases of business and professional men who can bring to this country special knowledge and skill not already here.

"Spend your spare time immediately in learning the English language and its correct pronunciation.

"Do not criticise any Government regulations, nor the way things are done over here. Do not speak of 'How much better this or that is done in Germany.'

"Be loyal to England, your host."

With very little change this code of good advice might be adapted for the use of immigrants to Canada, including many of my own esteemed countrymen.

We were a bit precipitate in announcing the coming of three thousand refugees from Czechoslovakia to British Columbia and the Peace River, with aided by a grant of $1,500 from the Czech government. Many of these once hopeful refugees are now on their way to concentration camps. The money that was to aid them in their re-establishment here has been seized by the German Reich. By the aid of lying, broken troth and the use of naked force, the Nazis in one swoop destroyed the Czech army with its forty divisions, seized the Skoda Armament Works—the fourth largest in the world—confiscated $135,000,000 in Czech gold and $300,000,000 worth of foreign assets, seized 1,500 fighting and bombing planes, twenty-five munition factories and nine others for the production of tanks and armored cars.

REWARDS OF BROKEN FAITH

Now, after having given Germany and Italy silent aid in the destruction of the Loyalist people of Spain, on the theory that the Spaniards might be friendly to Russia, the French and British governments are approaching Soviet Russia for aid to prevent Rumania with its wealth of oil and mines and agriculture from becoming a serf-state of Nazi Germany.

The cheapest criticism is that which shows wisdom after the event, but the whole trend of Fascism in Europe has been made so clear by books, speeches and acts of the dictators, that it has been obvious all along, save to those clothed with authority.

It also is the weakness of the democratic elective system, which enables men of pliant nature and petty duplicity to win votes and secure office over those of clearer knowledge and stronger character, who decline to stoop to the tricks and deceits whereby votes are won.

Yesterday I referred to Quebec as the Fascist portion of Canada. After the words were done into type I came across Dr. Wilfrid Bovey's new book "The French-Canadians Today". He says, "As for Fascism, Quebec has none of it. It betokens state ownership, and is a form of Socialism repugnant both to the tenets of the church and Norman democracy." So I must readjust my charge to this recognized authority. Director of University Extension at McGill, a leader in the Canadian Legion, a former C.B.C. governor, described by Cardinal Villeneuve as "a Protestant who doesn't protest", Dr. Wilfrid Bovey is recognized as the outstanding interpreter of French Canada. He considers the French-Canadians the most democratic people in the world, descended as they are from those Normans who wrested the Magna Carta from King John.

Yes, Bovey fears for the Imperial tie. Forming one-third of the population of Canada today, the French-Canadians may become a majority before another two generations have passed. He is positive that Quebec will never send an army to the assistance of Britain unless Canada is itself threatened—and perhaps not then. But he is also positive that Quebec is solidly behind Duplessis' padlock law. He says the Quebecers regard the law as a manifestation of Quebec's democracy, because such tactics have been used before against attempted autocracy.

Which goes to show the gulf between British and French democracy in Canada.

A LEISURE TIME FETE

Sociologists are worrying about what the people are to do with the new leisure that changed times have distributed. May I offer one practical hint?

Commit to memory all the recorded words of Jesus. The task is wholly reasonable, though not easy to the ordinary person. It is a mental discipline. And it deposits in the memory a standard of choice English and of elevated thought. It is a treasure house to which one can repair in the night watches, or in moments of waiting, or on tiresome rides.

Best of all, such a mental treasure makes the mind of the Master a real and accessible standard of life. It delivers one from common misconceptions of Christ. And it equips one to teach the most precious of all truth.

As we would fill our lives with Thy graces, O Master, so also would we fill our minds with Thine own words. Amen.

An Economic Program for American Democracy

By seven Harvard and Tufts economists: Richard V. Gilbert, George J. Hildebrand, Jr., Arthur W. Stuart, Marina Yaple Sweezy, Paul M. Sweezy, Lorie Tarshis and John D. Wilson.

Into the 90 pages of this book have gone more careful thought and lucid writing than are to be found in most volumes many times its size. Its authors know that the small voice of reason need not shout in order to make itself heard, and when their quiet but searching review of the nature of the American economy is over, few are the issues dealt with on which light has not been thrown.

The book frankly defends the New Deal policies of President Roosevelt as the hope of democracy. When the great leader came to office America seemed to have a date with disaster; industry was maimed, bread lines darkened the land, the banks faced ruin, and the farmer's plight was desperate. The national income of the United States in 1932 was just half what it was in 1929. The crisis was deepening into despair. Then, by what must be called one of the miracles of politics, Mr. Roosevelt, epic crusader for every noble cause, was given the chance to take charge and under his magic touch and inspiring guidance America's dizzy spiral into calamity was checked and the march to recovery began.

The very men Roosevelt saved have astonished the world by their ingratitude. The bankers and business men who were the first to benefit from the New Deal now hunt the president with brutish venom, stooping in the duel for weapons of malice and scorn with which to pursue and punish him. They have learned nothing, forgotten nothing, forgiven nothing. They want the government to let the old order in which the strong preyed on the weak, and the poor were the pawns of the rich, to go on in savage supremacy. Wall Street does not like the new spirit at White House, but its hostility does not worry the President too much. As Mr. Roosevelt once said, a statesman must be known by the enemies he makes as well as the friends he keeps.

What are some of Mr. Roosevelt's triumphs, as seen by these seven economists who serve no party cause but only the truth as they find it?

To begin with, he stated the axiom on which the prosperity of the United States rests when he said that the central task of democracy was to bring idle men and idle money together so that the curse of poverty may be cured and social security attained. He has defined the issues on which the political battles of America for the next generation will inevitably be ranged. Rousseau is said to hold a major place among political prophets because he asked the right questions although he got the wrong answers. In the history of human thought it is no mean victory to have been able to ask even the right questions. How great, then, must be the stature of Roosevelt, as seen in the perspectives of history, who has considered that he did so vast a work to change his dreams into ideals and write his aspirations for the common man into the statute-books of America?

"On the basis of a careful study of government receipts and disbursements," our authors say, "it has been computed that the net expenditures of the Federal government tending directly to expand the nation's income averaged $3 billion a year from the middle of 1933 to the middle of 1937, as compared with the annual average of $1.3 billion in the preceding three and a half years. By the latter part of 1936 the national income had reached a level equivalent to about $70 billion per annum as compared with $41 billion in 1932-33; both the physical output of mines and factories and the average prices received by farmers for their produce had more than doubled; and some eight million more workers were employed in private jobs than at the depth of the depression."

That is what Roosevelt did for America; the magnitude of his achievement simply needs to be stated to be seen in all its grandeur.

There was no inflation, no attack upon industry, no crippling increase in taxation. But the heirs of special privilege would not yield to the new freedom and, stubbornly digging themselves in behind the ramparts of their fortress of reaction, decided to fight. Although Roosevelt won the 1936 election and was given an emphatic mandate to press forward bravely with his reform program, political opposition both from within and without his own party thwarted his efforts. It is not that the New Deal has failed; it is simply that the champions of the Old Deal, revived from their slump, are resolved that he shall have no chance, and thus battle almost every proposal of the President with a harshness almost unexampled in American public life.

Even now one out of every four Americans able and anxious to work cannot find employment. Roosevelt was checked in mid-course; there must be no turning back. That is the advice given the president by these economists. More than that, they sketch a reform program they wish the government to adopt.

They want slums broken up and America given clean homes for the poor at a low figure; what they term the "gigantic conspiracy" of certain monopoly groups in the United States to get the maximum of returns for the minimum of public service is to be attacked and smashed; farming is to be put on a new basis, even the neglected sharecroppers of the southern States whose misery is a stain upon society at last getting their just due; unemployment insurance, employment agencies, recognition of trade unions, compulsory respect by employers for the right to organize—these are but a few of the reforms they advocate.

"The National Labor Relations Act, courageously administered and enforced by the National Labor Relations Board, has done more to make real the guarantees of equality and freedom written into our constitution than any measure adopted since the administration of Abraham Lincoln. Now that it is being made the object of a vicious and dishonest attack by the most reactionary elements in the community, it behooves the friends of liberty and progress to rally to its support. We register our wholehearted approval of the National Labor Relations Act and the National Labor Relations Board; any modification of either would be a blow to the rights of labor and a serious setback for the orderly processes of democratic government."

This passage typifies the spirit in which these seven economics deal with labor problems. While professors in dictator countries preach gospels of hatred, investing doctrines of brutality with an alien sanction, these American teachers

A Farmer Speaks

Editor, Bulletin: Social credit means government control of the life blood, the coin of the realm, the medium, the credit. It means the game and the animals must be fed on rainy days, as well as on fine days when everybody is at work. It means that human beings are more like horse power than motor power; you can't shut them down until you need them again. It means we must feed our slaves whether there is work or not; and remember the horse does not recognize any charity in that. Of course you say that is very different; I own the horse, I do not own the man. No you do not, but you expect him to be around when you want him. A house divided against itself, you know, is bad. I like the expressions, fellow citizens and brothers and sisters, but let us be consistent. A basic dividend is reasonable and feasible. It removes compulsion, but leaves plenty of room for ambition. It is Socialism on a broad scale instead of the narrower one of public ownership with its possible favoritism and irresponsibility.

With reference to pegging wheat, 46 million dollars is a lot of money, so is 60 million dollars, that the C.P.R. got a few years ago to keep the railway shops going. We are supposed to pay our taxes to keep the C.N.R. going, and all other relief, on a world market price for primary products, while we subsidize the manufacturer so he can compel the primary producer to pay a fabulous price for machinery. So you see laissez faire and the old system has run itself into the ground. The railroads, loan companies, life insurance companies, stock and bond brokers, grain exchanges and manufacturers all want these pauprics settled up to make more business. Our markets have been meddled with in favor of these interests. Now let them rest us through this mess. You can't have your profits only after you have fulfilled your obligations. You can't leave us in the lurch.

An acreage bonus is like renting the land from many a rascal who will do pretty poor work. This government plan of pegging wheat up to $1.00 on 2,000 bushels is the best scheme I think. It holds up the small farmer and will not give the big farmer much inducement. If you keep that up a few years the big farms will be turned into smaller farms. That is the way to get more people on the land; discourage the big farmer and protect the small farmer. A man needs a half section, and a section is not too much, but he does not need three or four sections or a township. I know of some such cases. The government should have a land department and take listings, and do a little valuating, and have an influence that would prevent wild real estate booms, land should have

Speaking in the House of Commons on March 27, 1901, in reply to a speech by R. L. Borden, Sir Wilfrid Laurier used words which might well be applicable to the condition of Europe today:

"I think I must adhere to the view I expressed five years ago that for no consideration would Canada be induced to be drawn into the vortex of European militarism. . . . The conditions which prevail today in Europe are deplorable to a degree. . . . The condition which prevails in Europe is an armed peace, almost as intolerable as war itself. This cannot last forever; it seems to me the day is not far distant when these nations, the wisest, the most advanced, the most civilized in the world, will recognize the folly that has been carried on with for ages and will come back to a more humane system such as we have on this continent."

Recalling this speech in his memoirs, Sir Robert Borden cynically commented: "Unfortunately the humane and reasonable anticipation which Sir Wilfrid set forth in these eloquent words had a bitter disappointment in the storm of war which burst upon the world seven years later."

It was in this speech that Sir Wilfrid clearly set forth that Canada would decline to attempt to coerce Great Britain into abandoning her free trade policy, but also stated with definite clearness that his government was ready to enter into reciprocal trade agreements with the Mother Country. But the first move must come from Britain. "It would be unseemly, not to use a stronger expression, to try to force the views of the colonial governments upon the people of the Mother Land."

ALAN WARREN: Ambitious young country doctor.

EMILY WARREN: Alan's wife.

ERIC KANE: Construction engineer.

DR. FARRELL: Alan's elderly associate.

Yesterday: Emily demands to know whether Alan is going to St. Louis. When he says, "No," she tells him that Eric kissed her. Alan faces a grave decision. Should he give up Summer for Emily?

CHAPTER XI

SLEEP brought Alan no repleive from his thoughts. Throughout the long hours of darkness he tossed, weighing one argument against another. At last he knew what he must do.

"I'll go to St. Louis," he said aloud. Only then did he sleep.

Early the next morning it was done. The letter to Peterson written, in the mail, but the satisfaction Alan had hoped for was still lacking.

"So you've really decided to make the change," Ferrell asked as he sat in Alan's office. A framed picture of Alan's father looked down from the wall, over the desk.

"Yes. I'm off to the city to become famous," Alan smiled. "Dr. Alan Warren, youngest professor of obstetrics of any medical school in the country. Man, have I fooled them."

"You are young," Dr. Farrell said seriously. "But it's ability, not age, that counts, and Peterson knows it. Do you think he'd be offering you this place if he thought you were not able to fill it? He knows what he's doing, all right. I've seen the best, studied with them, and you are as good or better than any of them.

"You've got the same asset your father had—the ability to win your patient's full confidence—plus a lot of knowledge and technique that neither he—nor I ever hoped to have. Your patients know you and love you. They know that you'll do your best, and they never have any thought that that isn't the best the medical profession has to offer. It's a gift the Great Physician bestows only on a chosen few."

"Going to the medical school won't rob me of that—if I have it —Dr. Farrell. There'll still be patients to take care of there, just as there are here. I'll be doing more work—better work."

"Your technique probably will improve greatly, Alan. You'll be doing 20 deliveries to every one you would do here. You'll develop new methods, pass them on to your students and, in time, you will be the great obstetrician—Dr. Alan Warren.

"But it will be different then, Alan. Every patient will just be another person under a white sheet —not some girl you've watched grow into womanhood. You'll probably never know her name; you'll never see the baby after she leaves the hospital. They come and they go, and where they come from and where they go to will remain a mystery to you. You'll be a specialist, not a country doctor."

"You make it sound pretty bad, Doctor." Farrell's arm was around his shoulder—the way his father's would have been, had he lived.

"I'm not trying to discourage you, son," Farrell said, "I just want you to be prepared. Think of the advantages you'll have. No more long drives; no more rushing to the hospital in the middle of the night. No more carrying the load of your patient's personal troubles as well as her physical ills. That will be a relief. You can call your life your own."

"I wonder what Dad would have done," Alan asked, looking up at the picture.

"Loving his son, knowing what he knew, he'd probably tell you to take it." Farrell answered. "But he didn't go when he had the chance. He once had an offer to become associated with a New York specialist and turned it down. His work was here, he said, and here he stayed. He might have been alive today if he had gone to the city."

His father had stayed here. Would his father want him to stay, even if it cost Emily's love? How had his mother faced this problem?

Making his rounds in the hospital brought Alan relief. Here he could forget his worries about the future and live only in the work of the present.

Grandma Frank's thin, quavering voice greeted him as he entered the room.

"I do declare, Allie Warren."—she never failed to use his boyhood nickname —"you're getting more like your father every day. Fine man he was, and a fine doctor too. You'll never know as much as he did. You and all your crazy contraptions, tying me up here in bed with pulleys and weights. When are you going to stop all this tomfoolery and let me go home?"

But her chart belied her cheerfulness. Alan noted the high temperature, fast pulse. "She's steadily growing weaker," the nurse told him.

Maryanne Brown, in the obstetrical ward, beamed with pride as Alan took her two-day old, eight-pound son from the nurse, laid him in his mother's arms.

"What are you calling him, Maryanne?" Alan had wheeled Maryanne in her own carriage—for the fifth time her mother paid him—when she was scarcely larger than this tiny child.

"We thought—Harry and I—if you don't mind—we'd like to call him 'Warren,' after you." She was almost shy. For Alan had been the "beau ideal" of her teen age phantasies.

Alan was almost out the front door when he heard a piping, small voice calling his name down the hall. He turned back to find five-year-old Tim McKay, his head wrapped in bandages, rushing toward him.

"I thought you had gone home, Tim," Alan said as he lifted the boy in his arms. "How's the head?"

"I'm going home right away. Mama says so," Tim answered.

"No more sleds, and no more crashing into trees, or you'll burst that noggin of yours wide open," Alan admonished the child.

"Noggin's all right, Doctor Alan, have you got one?"

"One what?" Alan feigned ignorance, although he well knew what the boy meant.

"Ice cream cone nickel, ice cream cone nickel" Tim chanted.

Alan reached in his pocket, drew out a coin and solemnly handed it to the delighted boy. "Remember Tim, all it will buy is an ice cream cone." Every child in Summer knew of Doctor Alan's "ice cream cone nickels" and he always carried a seemingly endless supply.

"Ice cream cone nickel!" Tim shouted again as he hurried away to show his gift to his mother.

No, Alan thought, I can't take this with me.

Days were too short for Emily. Although no word had come from Dr. Peterson, she was already planning on what furniture she would move to St. Louis first, what she would put in storage until her dream home there became a reality.

Her days were full. Letters to old friends, plans for farewell parties, hopes for the future kept her from missing Alan. And he had kept his promise, too, to spend more time with her. Even a steady two-day downpour failed to quell her bubbling spirits.

The rain reminded her of Eric and she wondered how the work at the dam was progressing. She had not seen Eric since that last night, but she had heard of him indirectly from the Price boys, from Harry Brown, who was working at the dam. Every unemployed man in the county was working up there, Alan had said.

Emily hoped Eric would beat the rain. That dam was his entire life —now.

Alan came in, his raincoat dripping. A small stream ran from the brim of his hat down over her head and neck as he kissed her.

"I hope you can stay at home tonight," she told him. "This is the kind of a night for popcorn and apples and a good book."

"I'm afraid you'll have to enjoy that alone—and I envy you," he answered. "I have a night at the hospital ahead of me. Mrs. Howland is in."

"They lost their first baby, didn't they?"

Alan nodded. "Premature. Dead at birth. I'm not expecting any trouble, but I'm not taking any chances."

The doorbell's ringing interrupted him. Emily answered it. In a moment she returned, waving a yellow envelope.

"Telegram—for you, Alan."

PINCHER CREEK MAN FALLS OUT OF CAR: KILLED

PINCHER CREEK, Alta., March 27—Paul DesJardin, 60, Waterton, 64 miles southwest, fell through an open automobile door and was killed instantly when a following car struck him at 10 o'clock Saturday night.

The accident happened on the main street here but police have had difficulty in locating eye-witnesses.

It was understood the car in which DesJardin was riding, driven by Lawrence Dunn, Waterton, was making a U-turn when the door suddenly flew open and Desjardin fell out.

The driver of the second car police were told, was Amrose Cafagrande, 22, garage owner, Hillcrest, 40 miles west, who stopped his car at once.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment was notified and shortly afterward Dr. G. A. Dupuis, coroner, pronounced the man dead. The body was removed to the funeral parlor and the coroner called an inquest at 8 p.m. Monday.

DesJardin came to Alberta 17 years ago from his native Quebec. A wife, at present in the United States, survives.

Dr. M. J. Barynion, Pincher Creek, who performed a autopsy Sunday said death was due to ruptured internal organs.

BROOKS WATER AFFAIRS QUIET PENDING PROBE

BROOKS, Alta., March 27 — Former trustees of the eastern irrigation district in southeastern Alberta conferred here Saturday and discussed their dismissal by government order last week and Premier William Aberhart's subsequent statement charging "irregularities" were found by provincial government auditors.

After the meeting, Robert Scott, of nearby Tilley, said the three former trustees had decided to make nothing for publication other than their decision "to wait and see what happens" and the fact that none had received notice of dismissal.

"We know nothing about what has happened," he said. "Other than what we see in the papers."

It was reported here the view of the trustees was that nothing had been transacted recently in the board's affairs which had departed from procedure followed in recent years, which they, claim, was always sanctioned by government officials.

The trustees are Carl Anderson, Scandia; Robert Scott, Tilley; Henry Dahl, Duchess.

Seventy-eight per cent were prepared to fight if Canada was threatened with invasion. Only 59 per cent favored conscription of manpower in the event of war.

United Effort of Industry, Manpower Called For By Eden

LONDON, March 27.—Anthony Eden has called for a united effort of industry and manpower in Great Britain to back up the government's efforts to create a European anti-aggression front.

"This is not time for halfway measures," the former foreign secretary declared. "As conditions are today, every hour counts." Some of his hearers interpreted his appeal as one for compulsory service of men and industry alike in the country's cause.

NATIONAL UNITY

Mr. Eden, addressing the association of American correspondents in London, reiterated his demands also for national unity to speed defence preparations against increasing aggression in Europe.

Mr. Eden, who resigned 13 months ago in disagreement with Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy, gave his backing to the government's new policy of seeking to form an international bloc to resist expanding Germany.

ORGANIZE DEFENCE

He urged "the peace-loving nations of this threatened continent to unite immediately to organize defence against further aggression."

In an obvious reference to Germany's absorption of Czecho-Slovakia and Memel, Mr. Eden declared that "a great part of Europe now sees low law prevail but the law of the jungle where the prey falls to the swiftest and most ruthless stroke."

"This nation should demonstrate to the world our national unity in purpose and in action," he said.

"IT'S hard to decide, isn't it? They're all so pretty. I love that black-trimmed, white-crowned, lilac-trimmed and be-veiled one you have on. However, this white straw with a wreath of white roses in my hand is something, too! With a tailored suit, I'd like having this high-crowned, golden wheat straw sailor here at my left elbow. Its tailored buckle is so amusing. I like the pink roses all over the crown of the black straw there beside you, don't you? But I'm going to buy the one I have on. I've wanted a white toyo straw for a long time. And I do like the navy grosgrain ribbon on the crown and the way the navy veiling forms a snood!"

Handicraft Collection To Honor Memory Of The Late Miss Florence Hallock

As a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Miss Florence Hallock, who until the time of her death last October was an interested and valued member of the Edmonton Home Economics Association, members of the association are planning a permanent memorial in the form of a collection of handicrafts to be established in the city.

CHERISHED IDEA

For many years the idea of a permanent handicraft collection was cherished by Miss Hallock and it is felt by the association that the establishment of such a collection would be the finest memorial possible.

Miss Hallock was a graduate in Home Economics of Pratt Institute, New York, and since her coming to the city was supervisor of Home Economics in the public schools as well as instructor in charge of Home Economics in the Technical school.

Through her wide interest, talent and enthusiasm, Miss Hallock was known in many circles throughout the province.

The many friends of Miss Hallock will be given an opportunity to co-operate with association members in the memorial establishment, for an invitation is being made for them to donate articles. Articles of silver, glass, china and needlework, both old and new, will be welcomed.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

The collection will be open to the public at stated times under the supervision of the association. Those desiring to assist the association are asked to get in touch with one of the following: Miss Alberta Hastie, at the Edmonton Normal school, telephone number 33020; Miss Hazel McIntyre, at the University of Alberta, telephone 22131; Mrs. Randolph Brewer, Youth Training school, telephone 52466, and Miss Ruth Maybe, Technical school, telephone 23095.

St. Mark's Is Setting For Wedding

St. Mark's Anglican church was the setting for a lovely spring wedding at the evening hour of eight o'clock on Saturday when Lillian Donalda "Donnie" MacCallum exchanged vows of marriage with Reginald Burg Hooper.

Both the bride and bridegroom have a host of friends in club and business circles in the city who extend to them best wishes on the occasion of their marriage.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Donald MacCallum while Mr. Hooper is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hooper of Edmonton.

Rev. C. Storey officiated at the ceremony and wedding marches were played by Mr. O. Kendrick.

Given in marriage by her uncle Mr. John Cook, the bride was very smart in a dove grey tailleur, with which she wore accessories in coronation blue. Her blouse was in soft grey and as her only ornament she wore a white gold locket, a gift of the bridegroom. Her small off-the-face hat had a veil and on her shoulder she wore a corsage of pale pink carnations.

Attendant to her sister, Miss Catherine MacCallum chose a chic wool suit in rust with pill box model hat and other accessories in rust. Her corsage was of white carnations and she wore a gold bracelet, a gift from the bridegroom.

Mr. Thomas Hooper supported his brother as best man.

Reception to about 60 guests was arranged following the ceremony at the Masonic temple and receiving in the bridal party Mrs. MacCallum was frocked very becomingly in Parrot blue sheer with trimming in fuschia taffeta. Her accessories matched the trimming on her dress and she wore a corsage of soft rose-toned carnations.

Mrs. Hooper chose a distinctive frock in Japonica with accessories in black and corsage of flowers.

Lovely bouquets of spring flowers graced the bride's table which was centered by a three-tiered wedding cake. Mr. William Wallace Howe proposed a toast to the bride, Mr. Thomas Dugoid proposed a toast to the bridesmaid and Mr. H. Rogerson proposed a toast to the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooper have left for a motor wedding trip, planning to go as far as Spokane. To travel the bride changed to an attractive rust wool dress, over which she wore a brown travel tweed top coat with fur collar and accessories in rust.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. E. T. Williamson, Miss Elsie Redden, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Merner and Mr. Donald Merner of Wetaskiwn.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are run down, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "mopey" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember the pep-generating ingredients in Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and stamina to give you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

Dorothy Dix Says:

A forward-looking young coupie who are about to be married want to know how a husband and wife can keep their love for each other alive.

I do not think that husbands and wives fall out of love with each other nearly so often as it generally believed. Admittedly the average middle-aged married couple show few of the signs of romantic passion. They do not bill and coo. They do not stage a perpetual petting party.

They are not forever telling each other how beautiful and wonderful they are. Their kisses are more apt to be a peck on the cheek than of the movie variety, but this, nine times out of ten, is not because they have ceased to care for each other. It is because their love has grown to be so much a part of themselves that they take it for granted just as much as they do any of the other blessings of life.

Still and all, even the hardiest flower blooms, the better for some tending, and there is no doubt that any husband and wife can make their love a more beautiful and fragrant thing by nourishing it and cultivating it instead of leaving its fate to chance.

Love, for instance, is largely self-hypnosis. They can keep themselves in love by the simple process of thinking they are in love. As long as a man thinks his wife the most beautiful and desirable woman in the world she is that to him. As long as a woman thinks that she has married Prince Charming she is wedded to him. Husbands and wives should never permit themselves to doubt the wisdom and desirability of the choice of mates. Nor should they examine their bargains too closely when they get them home. Their goods should be: Every day in every way I am more and more in love.

Triangular Face Needs Special Type Coiffure

By ALICIA HART

It is a fairly simple matter for the woman who has a triangular shaped face to arrange her hair and apply cosmetics in such a way as to make the lower part of the face seem less broad, her forehead less tapering.

If your face is triangular—broader across the jaws than across the forehead—always brush hair back and up from the temples to create the illusion of width in the forehead and length in the face.

According to Pere Westmore, famous Hollywood makeup expert, it would be a mistake for you to part your hair low at the side, to have bangs or wear it absolutely flat across the top. Mr. Westmore would have you avoid any coiffure in which the hair is dressed very low on the neck. Keep forehead fully exposed, he says, using the natural hairline with softness behind ears but not full at jawline. No dips and no square cut bobs.

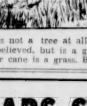

Rouge ought to be blended on the outside of cheeks, carried faintly upward toward temples and downward to create a slight shadow at jawline. Don't apply it in a circle in center of cheeks or get it too close to your nose.

Use lipstick to make mouth look wide and full. Stick to natural lines. No Cupid's bows or round, rosebud effects. Leaving the mouth wide will tend to reduce the apparent width of the jawline.

However, if your face happens to fall in the inverted triangle category—wide brow and narrow chinline—dress hair softly on top, letting fullness begin at a point above ears and continue downward behind them. A long bob with hair slicked down on the head and quantities of fluffy ends low on the neckline would be all wrong. Place rouge on highest point of cheek bones, carrying it well upward to temples and downward to a point directly below center fullness of cheeks.

Win Healthy Nerves; Find New Joy In Life

Ragged Nerves Ruin Happiness

Nerves ready to snap—you wonder how much longer you can stand the harassing round of daily tasks.

And yet with a little understanding those nerves could be made a source of vitality, charm.

A high-strung, nervous temperament needs release, variety. After a hard day at the office, fun to join a tap-dancing class or a badminton club, banish worry and care in healthful, absorbing exercise!

Eating leisurely meals, instead of snatching food while on edge, would cure that "nervous indigestion." A proper diet of minerals, vitamins and carbohydrates gives pep to cope with daily problems, improves the disposition.

Surprising how you conquer that tense feeling, how easily you overcome insomnia when you know how to relax. Stretch out flat and relax groups of muscles—first just the fingers, then the whole arm, the toes, then legs. Gradually go limp all over.

With healthy nerves, what a rosy glorious world is yours! In our 32-page booklet a famous physician tells how to overcome nerves, discusses the psychological reasons for nerves, possible physical causes such as bad teeth, tonsils, Diet and daily care.

Raising A Family

Those who think that little children forget easily, are mistaken. A small child remembers for a long time.

Like an adult he may discard usual experiences and retain only the events that make a deep impression, but by the same token he may have done a bit of window-dressing and you are sure it happened this way when it happened that way. However, the main idea is right. And whether you know it or not, whatever you do remember is still fixed because it was associated with excitement.

The young child registers most clearly the experience out of line with his daily life. If he lives a normal, sympathetic existence, the opposite experience, suddenly sprung, will leave its mark. And, conversely, the child accustomed to inattention and dullness will remember in detail the existing gift or the unexpected trip.

LEAVE OUT SHOCKS

My reason for being so analytical is this—we should try to leave shock out of the child's store of reminiscence. It may color his life with a sense of outrage, concerning not only that one day or hour but also against his early treatment. An incident that seems unimportant to us, may enlarge into brooding as the child grows.

This is not to scare any parent about correcting a child. He takes his share of knocks and does very well, as a rule, and still retains his faith and sense of love and security.

But I should protect him from an overly-emotional experience such as fright by forcing, or from any physical experience that smashes dignity.

If mother, usually understanding and companionable, in a spell of nervous tension boxes little Johnny's ears hard, he may remember it indefinitely, with embellishments.

Light oil is better for an automobile engine than heavy oil, but since the former has a tendency to aerate rapidly, a much closer check on the crankcase supply is necessary than if a heavy lubricant is used.

Your Health

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Backache is a common symptom because it may result from a variety of causes. A few of the disorders which may produce an ache in the back are as follows: lumbago, sciatica, bladder trouble, kidney stones, disorders of women, foot defects, arthritis of the spine, prolapsus or fallen organs, sacroiliac injuries, or the condition referred to by the patient as "weak back".

In this last complaint, any great amount of standing, stooping, or heavy lifting is followed by a dull dragging ache in the lower back. In men, prostatic disorders may prove a cause of backache.

Backache is also seen frequently in the acute disorders attended by fever, such as influenza. It may be due to colitis, or on the other hand may be the result of nothing worse than faulty posture.

In addition, backache may be the direct symptom of spinal subluxations in which case manipulative or adjustive treatment will bring relief.

A new type of backache in women which has been given the name of "automobile back" follows driving a car when the seat is not properly adjusted. Sometimes a pillow placed in the small of the back will push the body forward enough so that this type of back strain will be prevented.

Generally speaking the patient with a sore, aching back will try to keep as quiet as possible. If he is lying down, he may draw the knees up toward the chest in his effort to find a comfortable position. The description of the ache will vary with the patient and the complaint. Those with a sacro-iliac injury, for example, may describe a sharp pain which keeps them in misery, and which is especially acute whenever they try to move.

The pain coming from a kidney stone is possibly the most severe type of pain known to human beings and may be truly agonizing. The ache in the lower back which may accompany the disorders confined to the feminine sex, is usually more of a dull, dragging ache. The type of backache due to a prostatic disorder may appear early in the morning and wear off during the day. When the back tenderness is the result of lumbago the patient will often say that the pain is worse when he has been exposed to cold or damp, or worse just before it rains.

In the many thousands of letters which I have read telling about various kinds of backache I believe I have possibly come across just about every known variety and often I am able to guess at the cause. However, I do not attempt to diagnose these cases by mail and would suggest that the best plan is to find out definitely what is the cause of the trouble.

This is best accomplished by going to a physician, or hospital or clinic and requesting a thorough examination. Sometimes the cause of backache is easily located, but in other cases only a most searching study will disclose the true cause. If there is any doubt as to the diagnosis, the X-ray will be found invaluable.

Tomorrow's article will take up "The Treatment of Backache." Look for it in this newspaper tomorrow.

Overcooking Wastes Treasured Vitamins

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Vitamins keep life going. They cost money. Do you waste these vitamins in cooking or do you keep a kitchen thrift account?

Overcooking is a spendthrift with vitamins. Tragic is the cabbage that has been overcooked until it has lost much of its valuable vitamin C. Or those carrots chopped into minute pieces, submerged in cooking water, then served up minus the water—and consequently minus much of their vitamin and mineral content.

To insure the preservation of the most vitamins and minerals in the cooking of a fruit or vegetable, follow the simple, easy-to-observe rule, "Cook quickly, in as short a time as possible, using the smallest amount of liquid that is practical. Make use of the cooking water."

METHOD AND TIMING IMPORTANT

You don't need special kettles or fancy equipment. It's just a matter of method and timing.

It is not necessary to flood vegetables during cooking. For many, a small layer of water in the bottom of the pan will be enough to form steam to cook them.

Then, when the cooking is done, there'll be about enough cooking water to furnish liquid for a butter sauce or to be combined with other fats and seasonings and served with the vegetable. When more water must be used, turn it into soups, gravies and sauces.

All of the vitamins are more easily destroyed in a solution that is alkaline than in one that is acid. So nutrition experts put "thumbs down" on the adding of soda to preserve the color in green vegetables. Even though this practice may bring out the green color, it destroys vitamins — especially vitamins C and B1.

A recent experiment with green beans showed that the very least amount of soda that would preserve the green color destroyed nearly 1-3 of the vitamin B1 content.

When cooking vegetables, beat them quickly to remove air in their tissues. Avoid unnecessary contact of air with the vegetable during cooking. Stirring air into hot food during cooking or stew-ing increases vitamin destruction by oxidation.

USE VEGETABLES WHEN FRESHEST

Another vitamin-saving practice is to use vegetables as soon as possible after buying them or bringing them in from the garden. Buy green vegetables from day to day if that is practicable, from a dealer who gets in a fresh supply of vegetables frequently.

Under ordinary storage conditions, there is a gradual loss of vitamins C, A and B1. The vitamin C losses are most serious, especially in non-acid vegetables, and these include practically all vegetables but tomatoes. Keeping vegetables in the refrigerator or a very cold pantry helps to cut down on vitamin loss in storage.

Last Surviving Member Of Reil Jury Succumbs

INDIAN HEAD, Sask., March 27.—E. J. Brooks, 90, last surviving member of the jury that tried Louis Riel, died at his home here Sunday. He had been ill since last fall. Less than two weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Brooks celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary.

Born in Lennoxville, Que., Mr. Brooks came to Winnipeg in 1880 and to Indian Head a year later.

Minute Make-Ups

Here's a hint to blue eyes, for evening. Dot your lashes apply deep blue mascara. And on the lids use brown shadow. Blend the brown cleverly, tapering off toward the outer top of the eyebrow. The brown does give your eyes a deep, mysterious something that's enchanting.

According To Culbertson

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I offer the following hand in all humility and would like your comments, both on what happened and on what should have happened.

"The actual bidding was:

North	East	South	West
2 clubs	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 hearts	Pass	7 no trump	Pass
7 no trump	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

"There is certainly nothing to be proud of in this bidding. North's opening two-bid hasn't seem so bad to me because of the tremendous distributional strength and only three honors. I hardly thought it felt that I, in the South position, stretched too far in bidding four no trump on my singleton honor trick. This is where my feeling of humility first comes in. I should have had the experience to know that a bid of five hearts certainly was correct. My next bid of five no trump, I think, probably was an error. I feel I should have bid six hearts. If I had North says he would have played the hand at six hearts which, with the favorable distribution, would have been a laydown and an extra trick would have been taken against any contract of spade. However, I consider that seven no trump was a pretty strong bid on North's part, considering how with his distribution, he should have insisted on playing in a suit.

"Now as to the play. Things might have been bad, but West opened the six of diamonds, which I took with the ace. I then led my singleton club and, by means of a finesse against the queen was worth a prayer in view of East's double, but it was the only chance for a sizable trick, it worked. From then on it was easy. I ran off seven clubs and four hearts, ending in my own hand with the nine and then cashed the king of diamonds for the thirteenth trick, fulfilling the grand slam contract.

"If only virtue might always be as well rewarded as this botched-up bidding! I should like your comments.

"W. P., Boston."

There is no joy in criticizing a man who already is penitent. Since my correspondent has neatly placed his finger on his own errors my remarks are likely to be a shade redundant. I fully agree that North's opening two-bid was logical in that he had four and one-half honor tricks, counting plus value, a very strong seven card suit, and another four card suit so nearly solid. Actually an optimistic player would count North's hand for only two losers, but, of course, the safer estimate is two. In addition to the two singletons, North also has a loser in either clubs or hearts South's final no trump response was much worse than even he realized. In the first place there is no occasion to jump to four no trump over an opening two-bid, no matter what the responder holds and, in this specific case, South's holding was not terrific and he had a singleton of his partner's suit that should have worried him a bit. Luckily enough, however, this four no trump response would not have been fatal if South had taken the proper action over North's five heart bid, that is, had merely bid six hearts. But, on the other hand, South, never would have had the thrill of finessing against the queen of clubs and tricking a three million point penalty, more or less.

TO RECOMMEND NEW PIPELINE RATE FOR OIL

By GORDON BATEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY, March 27.—The McGillivray Royal Commission probing Alberta's oil industry after hearings extending over the past four months, today prepared to investigate further into the numerous angles of the problem.

An equitable rate for transporting petroleum products by pipeline will be recommended to Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Bowen of Alberta, but the amount has not been decided. Present rate for moving oil from Turner Valley to Calgary, approximately 32 miles, is 15 cents a barrel. It is expected any reduction will be passed on to the consumer.

Mr. Justice A. A. McGillivray of the Alberta Supreme Court, Appellate division, commission chairman, and Major L. R. Lipsett, marketing authority of Ardley, Alta. will endeavor to determine why crude oil at Turner Valley field sells for $1.30 cents a barrel to refinery companies and brings more than six dollars, excluding tax, on the retail market after processing.

Eight Drown

of the Murray and East Pine rivers that practically wiped out the small East Pine settlement of British Columbia early Saturday morning. The body of Mrs. Warren has been recovered and brought to Dawson Creek.

Edith Warren, sixteen, managed to get into a tree and clung there in her night attire for four hours before being rescued. She is suffering from exposure. Her brother Bert managed to get hold of the telephone wire lying in the water and pulled himself to safety—suffered severe bruises and lost most of his clothes.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamont also escaped with the above, suffering from severe bruises and exposure and, like young Warren, lost most of their clothes among the ice floes. The Warren house was washed away.

COVERS POST OFFICE

The other stream went north and covered the post office and two other residences, the occupants escaping through the roof. Milo Durney and his family escaped through the roof and were stranded on the roof of their house without much clothing for twelve hours, Mr. Durney tearing shingles from the roof and burned them in the chimney for warmth and to attract attention.

Horses belonging to Bill Rosinau are in an ice-encircled corral unable to get out and in a position where it is impossible for anyone to release them.

Constable Jack Watt, B.C. police and game warden Oscar Quesnel made the trip to the scene in three hours from here. They immediately obtained robes, went up the Murray river above the flood, crossed on the floating ice and succeeded in rescuing the Durney family, Mr. and Mrs. Boshier and a small Smith boy.

Some of them went into the icy waters but all are now safely located on the south side of the river.

These constables returned to Dawson Creek during the night bringing the body of Mrs. Warren, obtained medical supplies and food and have gone back to the stricken district.

The water is still high and a break in the jam will relieve the situation quickly.

Residents on the north side of the Pine river which forks at that point with the Murray have not been heard from but reliable sources say they would have had ample time to escape to higher ground.

The body of Don Lamont, age three, was recovered Sunday afternoon on a bench just below where the Warren house was formerly situated. Late reports state Mrs. W. Warren's body was floating on an ice cake when recovered.

Peril Seen When Ice Jam Cracks

Ice jam and flood at East Pine, B.C., which has already claimed at least eight lives will prove an even more serious menace when the jam gives way, according to a message received here by radio from Alex Dame, Yukon Southern Air Transport pilot, who flew over the stricken area late Saturday.

Dame reported that houses had been torn from their foundations, and that he could see bodies of horses in the ice which was piled from 50 to 75 feet in height. Water was backed up the Pine and Murray rivers for 20 or 30 miles, and would flood the entire country-side when the ice jam broke, he predicted.

Dame reported that he had seen only two persons from the plane as he flew over the town-site. There was no place in which a landing could be made and there did not seem to be any way in which the survivors could be reached.

Frightened Horse Crashes Into Auto

Becoming frightened by school children at 99 avenue and 109 street, a horse being driven by H. Tomik, 8928 102A avenue, bolted at 12:10 p.m. Monday and crashed into an auto when trying to turn east on 100 avenue. The car, being driven by T. J. Whiddon, 11034 82 avenue, was damaged on the left fenders, door, and body, while the horse suffered a bad cut on the upper lip.

Tomik told police he leaped from the rig when he could no longer control the horse.

When an earthquake occurred in Manila during 1937, telegraph wires brought the news to America before the shock waves reached American seismological stations.

PEDESTRIAN IS HIT BY AUTO: DRIVER HELD

Mrs. M. Gibney Suffers Injuries—A. Stoddart Is Arrested

Suffering body bruises when knocked down by a car driven by Archie Stoddart, 38, of 10227 108 street, Mrs. Maude Gibney, 61, of 10241 107 street, was taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital in a Jack Hays' ambulance at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Stoddart is charged with negligent driving.

Stoddart reported to police that while driving on 102 avenue between 104 and 105 streets he felt a bump and getting out of his car to investigate found the right wheel of the machine resting on the woman's chest.

ENTERS DRIVEWAY

Stoddart said he was travelling west and had slowed down to about four miles an hour to enter a driveway on the north side of 102 avenue. Just as he was turning into the driveway, he said, he "felt a bump" and stopped immediately to investigate.

Mrs. Gibney told police at the hospital that she was walking east along the north travelled portion of the avenue, and moved nearer the curb when she saw Stoddart's car approaching her. As the auto reached her, she said, it turned north and knocked her down.

UNDER WHEEL

George Kerr, 10230 105 street, told police that he was passing at the time and saw the woman struck and knocked down by the auto. He said Mrs. Gibney was lying about nine feet from the north curb when Stoddart's front wheel was resting on her.

Police said the windshield and one headlight of Stoddart's car were mud-spattered, and that their foot brakes on the car were ineffective.

X-ray examination showed Mrs. Gibney, besides having a badly bruised chest, had several ribs fractured, it was reported Monday.

Stoddart was adjourned to April 3 when he appeared in city police court Monday.

PASTOR SCORES NICKEL EXPORTS TO AGGRESSORS

While the Canadian government permits profits from nickel exports to aggressor nations it cannot consistently seek help from its manpower in the present crisis, asserted Rev. H. Stibbards in his sermon at the McDonald Baptist church Sunday morning.

Mr. Stibbards questioned the right of Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King to commit the Canadian people in the present crisis and stated "that no government would compel me to take up a gun and shoot my fellow man under present conditions."

He was referring to the alleged supplying of Canadian nickel to Japan, Italy and Germany. He considered that the stopping of nickel and other armament supplies to the aggressor nations "would do more than anything else to stay the hands of these aggressors, certainly more than sending our youth out to shoot down each other," he declared.

Pastor Claims Religion Needs More Sacrifice

There are times today when the usefulness of the church is a matter of debate, because people regard religion as a duty rather than a privilege, J. Gordon Brown, guest minister from Robertson United church said in a sermon at First Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

"People must be willing to do more than their duty in this world or they are betraying God's trust in them," he said. "Our religion today has not enough sacrifice."

Religion today was not enjoyed by the people as it was by those of the past, said Mr. Brown. Those was a great lack of character and joy, which the people of today can only gain by delving deeper into Christianity.

Ferrier Advises Against Stopping Left-Hand Turns

Elimination of the left hand turn for street cars at 101 street and Jasper was considered impractical at the present time in a report made to commissioners Monday by Thomas Ferrier, superintendent of the street railway. The suggestion, made by Ald. E. Brown, would entail much routing of street cars. Mr. Ferrier said and there would be strenuous objections from business houses on 101 street.

MOTORISTS GET NEW LICENSES: SILVER, BLACK

New automobile licenses made their appearance on Edmonton streets on Saturday and on Monday a large number of the new plates were seen.

The black numerals against the silver background make an impressive color scheme.

Officials stated that the demand was comparatively slow Monday as the present license year does not expire until Friday of this week.

New plates are due on Saturday next, the first day of the new provincial fiscal and automobile licence year.

Heavier demands are expected for new plates during the week. Many drivers are requesting the same numbers they had last year.

His Honor Lt. Gov. J. C. Bowen has been assigned No. 1940, the year number.

J. H. Morris, who brought the first automobile to this city, once more has received No. 1. Doctors are seeking office and home telephone numbers and others are asking for favorite numbers.

Through The Mill

On the watch for confidence men as a result of several complaints regarding operations of the gyp artists on 101 street, a city police constable recently saw a man step forward and grasp a passerby, a farmer, by the coat and engage him in conversation.

The constable crossed the street, questioned the farmer, told the man who had done the accosting, and then arrested the accoster on a charge of vagrancy.

While the questioning was going on, the accused's companion "kept butting in" said the constable, and then accompanied the arrested man and the constable to the pilloe station.

At the station, the charge was changed to one of assault, and the talkative companion was charged with obstructing a police officer.

In police court Monday morning, the two accused men were dismissed with a warning, the magistrate stating that there was sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction.

"Demon Rum" dogged the steps of four men who appeared Monday. Two of the accused were fined $20 and costs for intoxication, while the third was fined the same amount for illegal possession of liquor. A fourth was charged with intoxication but was adjourned.

GROUP ASKS PREMIER FOR NEW HIGHWAY

Hard-Surfaced Road Would Bring Tourists To Alberta, Claim

Request for construction of a hard-surfaced highway from Cardston to a point on the international border a few miles east of Carway, at which a new port of entry will be established, was requested by a delegation which interviewed Premier William Aberhart and members of his cabinet on Saturday. The delegation was headed by officials of the Browning, Montana, chamber of commerce.

The proposed road would link Macleod with Browning and Helena with a hard-surfaced highway and according to the delegation, would serve to tap the main east-west highway through Browning and route tourists into Canadian parks by a shorter and more convenient route than that which now comes through Glacier National Park and Waterton by way of Pincher Creek.

The delegation was accompanied by representatives of the Cardston Board of Trade and presented a petition, together with resolutions and letters signed by the Browning Chamber of Commerce, the Blackfeet Tribal Business Council, the Macleod Board of Trade and boards of trade or chambers of commerce of Okotoks, High River, Edmonton, Claresholm, Nanton and district, the Oldhills Board of Trade, the Calgary chamber of commerce, the Mayor of Browning and the superintendent of Waterton Park in Montana, as well as letters from private individuals.

The delegation was given a sympathetic hearing and was informed that every consideration would be given the request.

The Inquiring Reporter

Down in Fostoria, Ohio, the city council found that parking laws were no longer a hindrance to motorists who park the wrong way in the wrong places at the wrong times, and abolished the parking laws for a period of 10 days, during which time the motorists will be "on their honor" to behave themselves. The idea is classed as an experiment.

"What do you think of this scheme for Edmonton?" asked The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter today. What several people think of it is herewith presented:

DOUGLAS HILL, typewriter mechanic: Abolishing the traffic laws means that motorists could even park on the sidewalks without being tagged, and I'm willing to bet the motorists will go as far as that when they know they are immune from prosecution.

SGT. MAJ. ALEX RIDDELL, city police traffic squad: We certainly don't need any such scheme here in Edmonton, because our system seems to work out all right as it is. One or two tags each week on parking offenders is all that is necessary in this city to keep the motorists on the right side of the law.

RUPERT McPEAKE, typewriter mechanic: That Detroit can laws in the Ohio town will be 60 field days for motorists. When they get tired of driving their cars on the street they will just have to drive out of them, lock the doors, and leave them where they sit for a week or so. They will probably watch double parking, however, for fear of someone running into their cars.

CHARLES TOWNSEND, cab driver: What a riot a scheme like that would cause in Edmonton. I can just picture Jasper Avenue and most of the downtown side streets filled with arguing motorists, and fist fight cropping up all over the place in battles for parking spaces. Boy, oh boy, what a scheme!

RIVER BREAKUP EXPECTED START IN SHORT TIME

Breakup of the Saskatchewan river won't start for several days yet, according to an official of the Alberta Motor Boat Company here. There is a possibility that it will go out around the first of the month, but about April 15 is a more likely date, he said. It all depends on the weather.

There are long stretches of open water on the river now but in many places there are five feet of solid ice.

Usually the ice goes out in April. Last year it moved on April 16. Earliest date for it to go out was April 4, 1920, while the latest date was May 6, 1909.

Dirty Chimneys Cause Most Fire

Dirty chimneys were found to be the cause of 17 fires out of 41 investigated during the month of February, it was stated in a report to council and commissioners Monday by Fire Marshall Jack Booth. The fire marshall reported he had inspected 852 buildings during the month.

whose photographic portrait, above, taken by Helmuth Goertz, well known young Edmonton photographer, has received the highest honor in photography, being exhibited with another, "Mister Jim," at the Ninth International Photographic Salon of Japan in November and January. There were 3,018 entries from 28 countries but only 504 were considered worthy of being shown in the salon. The subject, Miss Puuki, was a member of the Hawaiian troupe which gave a show at the Strand theatre last August. In the past seven months Mr. Goertz has had his photographs shown at international salons at Tokyo, London, Antwerp and Utica, N.Y. His was the only successful entry from Canada at the Tokyo exhibition.

FILING ON LAND IS TERMINATED: NEW REGULATION

Filing of homesteads in this province has terminated and under a new Consolidated Lands Act which Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, will pilot through the legislature there will be new regulations regarding obtaining of crown lands.

Notices have gone out from the lands and mines department that homestead filing will cease as from Friday last at 5 p.m.

Under the new regulations crown lands will be leased to a holder for 20 years.

Provision also is made for purchase of land after a 10-year period. The agreement will provide that the person taking the land must enter into occupation thereof, within six months of the agreement's completion.

By means of the new regulations, the government will be able to better direct settlement, keep it from going to lands not suitable to agriculture and keep people from becoming too far removed from available social services.

LIBERAL GROUP PLANS MEETING FOR WEDNESDAY

Discussion of resolutions that are to be submitted to the party executive as suggestions for a provincial program will take place Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the I.O.O.F. at a meeting of the Edmonton provincial Liberal association, president Edward C. Fisher announced Monday.

Chairman of the resolutions committee is Alderman F.C. Casselman. E. L. Gray, M.L.A., Alberta Liberal leader, and other party members of the legislature, have all been invited to attend the forum discussion.

Decision to call this meeting was taken at a meeting of the Liberal association on March 8 at which a general forum of the party's attitude to provincial problems was held.

Committee was struck to draft resolutions embodying the opinions expressed at that meeting, and on Wednesday these statements on the party's position will be discussed, Mr. Fisher said.

The president of the association added that the meeting had no power to draft any plank of the party platform. All it would do would be to submit suggestions for such a platform.

A-R-O-U-N-D THE TOWN

The Edmonton National Labor Council recently passed a resolution opposing amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways. The council declared that such action could only mean the loss of employment for large groups of workers.

J. A. McNeil, secretary of the Alberta Motor Association, reported Saturday that 28 enquiries for tourist information, mostly from the United States, were received last week. Maps and road information are being sent all tourists who write to A.M.A. headquarters, he said.

Dr. Roland W. Halladay, first doctor to open a practice in the Calder district, several years before the war, died in Toronto last week, according to word received in Edmonton. He practiced in Drayton before coming to Edmonton. After serving overseas he returned from France to make his residence in Toronto.

J. L. Bolocan, recently-appointed manager of the new Army and Navy store at Vancouver and formerly associated with the Army and Navy store here, returned to Edmonton Monday morning, following a seven-week flying trip that took him to Toronto, Montreal and New York. He will leave the coast in about 10 days to take over his new position.

These balmy breezes that are making you tumble out of your heavy woolen undies and the slushy streets that force you to wear rubbers or run around with wet feet, are a sure sign that spring has arrived. And just to make it definite a couple of big black crows were spied in the city Monday. They were seen by Leslie Brown, 7737 112 avenue, and his chum, in Rat creek ravine near the Exhibition grounds.

Moses Finkelstein, father of Noel Finkelstein, 13118 102 avenue, died at Los Angeles according to word received here Monday. He was 66 years old. Mr. Finkelstein was a former Winnipeg alderman and a prominent business man there since 1882, when he established the Northwest Hide and Fur Company. He had been spending the winter in California. His son will leave Tuesday night for the funeral at Winnipeg.

MIDNIGHT OIL TAKES BEATING AT UNIVERSITY

Great quantities of midnight oil are being consumed these nights at the big University of Alberta as students work feverishly to make up for the time they wasted during the year and prepare to meet the annual bugaboo—final examinations.

Usually the most active group in the student body, first and second year students in engineering courses were hushed and pale Monday as the 11th hour drew near—their finals begin Tuesday. They will finish April 8th, and then, while other students are finishing their studies and writing exams the engineers will be climbing all over Edmonton with survey instruments learning to work levels and such other engineering phenomena.

EAST PARLEY ON TOBACCO PROBED HERE

Quebec Conference of Jobbers Subject of Court Investigation

Evidence at the preliminary hearing of an alleged tobacco combine by manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers and retailers to maintain a standard price for tobacco products centered around a meeting of jobbers and wholesalers held at Montreal in February, 1935, at which the issuance of 12 cigarettes for 10 cents was the main topic.

Witness being examined was O. W. Burke, secretary of the Quebec Wholesale Jobbers' Association, who testified that the meeting was attended by jobbers from all parts of Canada and that the manufacturers had been invited to send representatives.

He was asked why the Quebec association had been prepared to put up $1,000 toward the expenses of the convention and said they wanted the affair to be a success. He said that manufacturers had been asked for donations.

Mr. Burke was of the opinion that the 12 for 10 policy would be detrimental to the tobacco trade as the cigarette consumption unit cost. He considered that less cigarettes would be purchased.

The witness was questioned regarding approximately 50 documents submitted as evidence and dealing with the meetings held in Montreal during 1935 at which jobbers from all parts of Canada attended and at which a new sales agreement was drafted.

INJURED MAN TO BE FLOWN HERE FOR AID

On an ambulance flight to bring Fred Kellough, 22-year-old sawmill operator who was badly mangled by the whirling blades of a circular saw near Bonnyville Saturday, Harry Winey, of Canadian Airways, flew north Monday morning.

He was to pick the injured man up at Bonnyville and bring him by plane to Edmonton where he will be taken to hospital for medical attention. It was expected that the plane carrying the injured man would arrive at the airport here Monday afternoon.

Kellough was injured when he was drawn into the saw when a knot in a log became tangled in his clothing. An arm was nearly severed in two places and his body badly torn.

City's Prospects Draw Praise From Business Visitor

Glowing pictures of Edmonton's business prospects were painted Monday by P. C. Wright, manager of the Canadian division of the National Cash Register Company, Ltd., Toronto, who is in the city on a business inspection tour. He is accompanied by R. G. S. Arthurs, divisional sales instructor for Edmonton.

Edmonton has gained an enviable position as a leading centre of Western Canadian business among eastern business concerns, he said. While in the city, the two men are conferring with R. F. Malone, manager of the company's Edmonton branch.

Pioneer days in Edmonton were described to Kiwanis Club members Monday noon by J. K. Macdonald, Edmonton barrister.

Two Rings Stolen As House Robbed

After spending the night with friends, as her husband was in hospital, Mrs. Booker, 10920 University avenue, returned to her home at 10 a.m. Saturday to find it had been broken into, city police reported on Monday. Two rings, valued at $50 each, and $2 in cash were stolen.

PREMIER RAPS UNITY SPEAKER FOR REMARKS

Declares Opposition Statements Last Week "Twaddle" and "Filth"

Expressing his surprise that any speaker should be so ill-informed, Premier William Aberhart, in addressing the Edmonton Phophetic Bible Conference at the Strand theatre on Sunday, declared statements made by a Unity League speaker in an address here last week as "twaddle" and "filth."

The premier, in his attack on the Unity speaker did not mention his name. He did mention that he was a school teacher.

So far as can be learned the only speaker on behalf of Unity in this city last week was J. Percy Page, who is president of the local Unity organization and who is a school teacher, being principal of McDougall Commercial High school.

DEFENDS RECORD

"I have been informed," said the premier "that a Unity party speaker declared that the present government has done nothing and that Social Credit was the cause of strife and bitterness in this province."

The premier expressed his surprise that any speaker "can be so ill-informed" as this speaker must have been for he could not have uttered such filth."

The premier challenged the Unity speaker to say what were the shortcomings of the larger unit school system or the new curriculum.

"Has he made any protest?" the premier demanded.

The premier dealt with the government's record in road building without adding to the public debt of the province and declared that this was the only government in western Canada that had been able to build roads without adding to the debt. He pointed to the health department and declared its travelling clinic was the finest and only one in the country.

He also pointed to the achieve-

Terry Pin's Tips On

SHAKING HANDS

When introduced, always smile and grasp the other person's hand in a firm, friendly clasp. This leaves your free hand ready for a snappy left hook to the jaw.

It is customary to murmur a few words of polite acknowledgement, such as: "This will not on the left side of your nose is just about what I'd expect with a voice like yours——" or, "You have a pretty good grip for such a runt."

Always catch the other person's correct name. Later, when your wallet is missing, this may come in handy.

A gathering of close friends is apt to last far into the night. The closer they are, the longer it'll be before someone calls for the check.

What To Do

We are having a Women's Club convention and it has fallen to my lot to introduce the speaker at one of the meetings. Just how should I correctly make the introduction? Thank you. MRS. C. S. L.

Answer—There are several important facts to remember when introducing a speaker: (1) Let your introduction be brief because the audience wants to her the speaker and not you. (2) Clearly state the speaker's name and her correct title or official position. (3) Mention the organization and city from which the spiaker comes. (4) And lastly, the topic of her talk or discussion. For example, if the speaker is Mrs. James Smith, president of the Women's Club, Oswego, Pa., you introduce her by saying: "Our speaker this afternoon is Mrs. John Smith, president of the Women's Club, Oswego, Pa. Mrs. Smith is going to tell us about the most constructive contribution the members of her club have made to their respective communities. I take great pleasure in introducing Mrs. Smith."

HUGE SHIPMENT OF GOLD SENT FROM BRITAIN

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., March 27 —The largest single cargo of gold ever shipped out of Great Britain left for New York aboard the United States liner Manhattan which carried £12,000,000 (about $56,160,000) in gold consigned to the United States because of European tension.

The shipment included £11,000,000 ($51,480,000) sent from Britain and £1,000,000 ($4,680,000) loaded at Le Havre, France.

Other consignments are to be sent on the Normandie today.

It was estimated conservatively that (20,000,000 ($93,600,000), including the Manhattan's cargo, would be shipped to the United States for safekeeping within the next few days. Some quarters said the shipments might total twice that figure.

Prairie Zones Low On Mental Illness, Is Report

VICTORIA, B.C., March 27.—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have a lower percentage of mental illness than any other part of Canada, according to Hazel Jacques, matron of the Saskatchewan Mental Hospital at North Battleford.

En route home after a holiday in Honolulu, Miss Jacques told interviewers here that there was no marked increase of mental cases on the prairies because of the serious drought of the last few years.

A great deal of the trouble is due to maladjustment, she said, adding that social service in association with psychiatry might do much to relieve conditions responsible for mental breakdowns.

These pictures were taken on the occasion, a few days ago, of the "pestpocket manoeuvres" staged at Aldershot by British Army authorities for the benefit of members of parliament. New weapons and equipment were put on exhibition and the Army's general efficiency demonstrated. The upper picture shows the abnormal audience at the explanation of the workings of a new Swedish anti-aircraft gun. This gun can fire shells, of the type seen in the hands of the spectator in the centre, at the rate of 120 rounds per minute. Below, a private is shown in the Army's new battle uniform. The high-waisted loosely fitting pants and short tunic are designed to allow greater freedom of movement, in conditions under which that freedom is of the greatest possible importance.

CANADA URGED FOLLOW LEAD NEW ZEALAND

CALGARY, March 27.—Miss Mary Crawford, Edmonton high school teacher and secretary-treasurer of the Alberta Co-operative Commonwealth Federation council, Sunday advocated that Canada follow the principle of the New Zealand Labor government.

In an address before 300 persons, Miss Crawford said in New Zealand the Labor party had taken the stand that external prices must not be allowed to dictate the standard of living. She said that by control of production, finance, and proper distribution, the standard of living should be based on natural resources.

Money for New Zealand's governmental reforms comes from production, said Miss Crawford.

Production increased from 90,000,000 in 1935 to 136,000,000 in 1938; salaries and wages from $5,000,000 to 68,000,000 and taxes only increased by 1,000,000, she stated.

Other accomplishments she cited were that relief rates had been unified and raised, public works had been opened up to absorb unemployed and a 40-hour week had been instituted.

Seaplane Base To Be Built In North

OTTAWA, March 27.—The national defence department has taken over exclusive water rights in the section of Prince Rupert, B.C., where a seaplane base will be built, it was disclosed last night in an order-in-council published in the Canada Gazette. Site for the base, announced several months ago, is the part of the harbor known as Fern Passage and includes Seal Cove. It was explained the defence department had to have the water rights before any actual work could be undertaken.

Imposition Of Super-Tax On Germany By Canada Finds Sympathy—That's All

By THOMAS WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, March 27.—The proposal made by J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., that Canada should follow the United States lead and impose a super tax on German imports finds much sympathy but little endorsation in government quarters.

"It would be virtually the imposition of sanctions against Germany, and Canada should not take such a step without united action by the whole Empire," was the statement from one authoritative source.

Another government authority intimated that Canada should use her tariffs in her own interests and not simply for the purpose of irritating Germany.

"After all, it would be only a pin prick to Germany and would have no salutatory effect. These pin pricks would only make Hitler more unreasonable and wipe out the little regard that still remains to him to consider world opinion. Give him the idea that world opinion doesn't matter or that the nations are only annoying him and dare not fight him, and there will be no restraint on his greedy seizures of other people's territory."

If Canada were to impose super taxes on German imports at the present time, she would be cutting off her own nose to spite Hitler's face.

In the twelve months ending January 31, 1939, Canada's exports to Germany totalled $18,523,466 and her imports from Germany were only $8,881,829.

Canada's sales to Germany have increased $7,000,000 in the last year and her purchases from Germany have decreased $2,000,000, so the Dominion is getting much the better of the bargain.

To impose super taxes on German imports Canada would have to denounce the Canada-German trade agreement and eliminate the most favored nations treatment.

NOTHING LEFT UNDONE ASSURE T. C. A. SAFETY

OTTAWA, March 27.—The efficiency of TransCanada Air Lines has been tested from every angle and those responsible are satisfied that nothing remains undone to assure safety and reliability, Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport, told a luncheon attended by a group of Vancouver citizens here Saturday.

Ian Mackenzie, minister of defence, to nine fellow-cabinet ministers who flew from Vancouver to Ottawa Saturday night on a T.C.A. goodwill flight preliminary to the inauguration of the regular scheduled passenger flight across the continent next Saturday. The group was headed by Rt. Hon. Lyle Telford.

All details relating to the service have been explored and T.C.A. is now ready to begin, Mr. Howe said.

RAMBLERS RACE TO 2-1 MARGIN AGAINST BEARS

PHILADELPHIA, March 27. — Philadelphia Ramblers gained a 2-1 lead in games over Hershey in the first place International-American Hockey League playoffs by defeating Bears 2-1 in an overtime game Saturday night.

The Philadelphia lineup was bolstered by Goalie Bert Gardiner and wingman Bill Carse who have been pinch-hitting with New York Rangers in their Stanley Cup playdown series against Boston Bruins.

A crowd of 6,758, largest ever to see a hockey game in Philadelphia, saw Cliff Barton produce the winning point after seven minutes 14 seconds of overtime play.

Terry Reardon gave Bears a 1-0 lead in the first period and the equalizer did not come until 6:06 of the third when Lude Wareing goaled home a loose puck from a face-off.

Ramblers constantly worried goaltender Allie Moore, who stood up brilliantly. The latter won the game hopped over his stick. The two teams play again at Hershey, Pa., Tuesday.

Our Old Country Letter — By J. E. Norcross

LONDON, Eng.—(By Mail)—For more than 600 years the Percys of Northumberland have made their home in their border stronghold, Alnwick Castle. The present head of the family is the 26-year-old Duke of Northumberland. He will live there no longer. He cannot afford it. He is moving out from its 200 rooms to a mere cottage of 20 rooms, Lesbury House, where only eight servants will be required instead of the hundred required at the castle.

Like Lowther Castle on the other side of the Pennines, which Lord Lonsdale was forced to leave a year or two ago for the same reason, Alnwick Castle will be preserved as a showplace, the cystic from which for hundreds of years the Percys descended from time to time at the head of their retainers to hold the border for the King of England against Scottish raiders.

The ducal castles have suffered sadly in recent years from the levying of death duties. More than $5,000,000 had to be paid when the present duke succeeded to them nine years ago and this only twelve years after similar charges had been met following the death of his grandfather.

This, however, was not all. An important part of the estates were coal properties from which about $350,000 was drawn annually in royalties. But the Coal Act has wiped out this income, substituting compensation to the amount of $1,000,000, which will produce less than $45,000 per annum. The royalties, of course, are a diminishing return but the duke is of the opinion that they are not quite so diminishing as the figures of the compensation indicate.

In fact, the duke finds some difficulty in discerning the difference between the present government and a Socialist administration—so far as the spoiling of the Egyptians goes. He, and other owners of royalties, regard the Coal Act as sheer confiscation, Socialism pure and simple, the sort of thing that might be expected from a government headed by Mr. Attlee or Sir Stafford Cripps, but not from one most of the members of which count their own private incomes in thousands of pounds.

The government has begun the distribution of the steel air-raid shelters for individual houses, beginning with congested areas in London and several of the larger industrial centres.

The men in charge of the distribution, however, found themselves in trouble at the outset. They don't know very much about dorgestic problems at Whitehall or they would not have begun distribution on a Monday. For in small houses, the country over, Monday is washing day and when the trucks arrived with the shelters they found the yards and gardens into which they were to be put festooned with the family laundry.

Indignant women got the clothes inside and took the lines down, but those who were still more indignant refused to do anything of the sort and the trucks had to go away still loaded. The home office was obliged to take action. It ordained that hereafter shelters should not be delivered on Mondays.

Incredible as it may seem, some shelters have not been delivered because landlords have forbidden their tenants to permit the excavation for them to be made in backyards. It may be necessary to bring in legislation to deal with owners who would rather let the occupants of their houses take the chances of being hit by bombs than allow the tarvia surface of a backyard to be broken.

In general, however, the government finds that people are willing to co-operate in the preparations for protecting the population against possible air-raids. This is noticeably the case in respect to the evacuation of children.

Mr. Walter Elliott was able to tell the House of Commons last week that there had been a splendid response to the house-to-house inquiries on the billeting of children.

"In two months," he said, "householders of the country without compulsion have enabled us to say that the most difficult part of the problems of evacuation, that of unaccompanied school children, has been solved."

The scheme was understood everywhere, he continued, and the difficulties which seemed insuperable to many critics had been made light of by the mass of the people who had to carry the burden.

"From the Royal Family to cottagers they have come forward," he added. Everyone was anxious to do all in his power.

Mr. Elliott said further that a medical organization was already in being which would cover every part of Britain. Apparently, the government is preparing for casualties occasioned by air raids on a large scale. It had been estimated, Mr. Elliott said, that 300,000 beds could be made available, 200,000 being ready within the first 24 hours.

Two thousand first-aid posts would be established at a cost of 8 million dollars. The provision of supplies for this vast scheme, he showed, was well advanced.

Sir John Anderson, minister of civilian defence, describing the progress made in air raid precautions as a consequence of the speed-up which has followed the September crisis, also used big figures. He said 1939 should now be ready for plans originally designed for completion in 1941.

Fifty million civilian gas masks had already been delivered as also 127,000,000 sandbags, with another 200,000,000 on order from India. There were also on order 1,400,000 special devices for the protection of babies and 1,300,000 gas-masks for young children. Orders had been placed for a reserve of electric apparatus for the country's power supply.

Sir John intimated that the progress of treatment for national service was proceeding satisfactorily. They wanted 1,500,000 men and women, he said, and 1,250,000 had already enrolled.

According to the latest report of the commissioners of inland revenue the number of millionaires in this country in 1937 was 917, or 42 more than the year before. As the millions are counted in pounds sterling over here, to be a millionaire one must have at least the equivalent of $5,000,000 in investments of one sort or another. The commissioners count as a millionaire persons whose incomes exceed $150,000 a year.

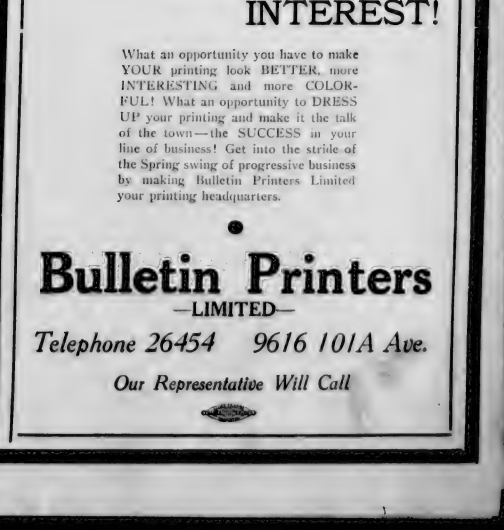

The increasing prosperity of Great Britain was further indicated by an advance of 4,358 in the number of people, totalling 95,750, whose incomes amounted to $10,000 or more. This class enjoyed an aggregate revenue of nearly two billion dollars, a rise of approximately $135,000,000.

These well-to-do people paid surtax amounting to nearly $300,000,000 in addition to standard income-tax at the rate of 25 per cent. which means that the treasury took nearly half of their revenues.

On the other hand, while 3,650,000 persons were charged with income-tax, 5,180,000 in the lower brackets were exempted by the operation of allowances.

The treasury has not finished with a man of property even when he is dead. The net receipts from death duties were about $450,000,000, a large part of which was sliced off 818 estates each valued at more than $500,000, 16 exceeding $5,000,000 each.

Income-tax, surtax and death duties, among them, furnish about half of the revenue. They are paid by fewer than 4,000,000 people out of a population of 40,000,000.

Forecasting Kimberley Hit Helping Hands

TODAY the Edmonton Athletic Club Juniors are marking time awaiting the coming of the Brandon Elks for the western final and city fans are in the clutches of a real old-fashioned hockey fever. That fever used to run rampant here throughout the winter. Now it breaks only when an Edmonton team gets into a western championship. However it is just as potent as ever, even if it is of shorter duration.

Forecasting what may happen against Brandon is more a matter of guessing and "hunching" just now than anything approaching a worthwhile comparison of power.

About all that is definitely known is that Brandon has a club good enough to look mighty impressive to the fans in Winnipeg, fans who ought to know junior calibre when they see it if anyone does. Winnipeg, however, appears to be basing its valuation of Brandon on the fact that this team won the Manitoba title over clubs that Winnipeg first thought were Dominion contenders.

It appears reasonable to concede that Manitoba has as good junior teams this season as it had in the Seals of last year. However all the Manitoba experts seem to completely ignore the possibility that the E. A. C. may be in a class by itself this season. Last year's Seals didn't impress me at all—regardless of word long won. Unless Brandon Elks are much better than what those Seals were, I think the E. A. C. can figure on going to Toronto for the Dominion final.

But you'll know the answer to it all after the opening game of the western final here Thursday night. Incidentally you'd better get your ducats in a hurry. It looks like a sell-out for each game here.

He's Seen 64 Derbies

COLONEL MATT J. WINN, the man who manages the Kentucky Derby, knows his derbies. He has seen every one of them since they were run in 1875 of them, starting back in 1875. This makes the colonel unique in North American racing for he is the only living man with such a record. He saw his first Derby when he was 12 years old. Since 1902 he has been in charge of this turf classic.

In these 64 runnings of this feature race, 644 horses have gone to the starting post while approximately 2,250,000 people have watched them dust over the historic track.

The colonel never bets on a race but, before somebody takes this as an argument to prove the folly of wagering a few chips, it should be explained that Winn doesn't bet in order to avoid influencing the public. If he were to make even a modest bet, folks would figure he had inside dope and if he should happen to win they would be positive of it. No member of the entire Winn family is allowed to bet or even discuss the chances of the various horses. This even applies to his race chauffeur.

Kimberley In Bad Spot

SLATED to start the Allan cup semi-final against Fort Arthur in Calgary on Wednesday, Kimberley Dynamiters today are more worried about 'flu bugs than they are about the Bearcats from the lakehead. Three Dynamiters are on hospital today with flu—defenceman Harry Brown, centre Hugo Mackie and Gordon Watson, a reserve forward. Kimberley's best defenceman, Ernie Mitchell, the Dynamiters have asked Dr. W. G. Hardy to start the series one day later than was slated.

This will be Kimberley's third Allan Cup semi-final home series.

Helping Hand For Sport

WITH the fans demanding nothing short of the very best in return for their support, and the very best costing a lot of money to provide, Edmonton sport is steadily reaching a stage where "angels of some sort or other must be found if it is to be kept alive. Angels of any kind are rare enough, but those with cash are exceedingly rare. Sponsoring clubs and organizations have accordingly come to be the backbone of sport here.

The Sport Booster Club, the Edmonton Athletic Club, the Maple Leaf Athletic Club, the Eastwood Rangers, community leagues and one or two other organizations have done much to keep sport alive here. Without them, the picture would be pretty bleak at present. Another helping hand is being extended now, however, by Alberta Sports Limited, a recently organized body of sportsminded men in Edmonton. The body will not take any active part in promoting either amateur or professional sport, but stands ready to lend assistance where it is most urgently needed, particularly to sports that do not at present enjoy any backing or sponsorship.

Art Ross Claims Bruins Best Hockey Club Ever

BOSTON, March 27—Three up and four to go as a result of their latest 4-1 triumph over New York Rangers, Boston Bruins interrupted their back-slapping last night only long enough to predict their Stanley Cup playoff series with the Blueshirts would be all over when they clash for the fourth time in New York Tuesday.

"We're a better club than they are," Manager Art Ross asserted, barely making himself heard over the joyous Boston dressing room din. "Tonight definitely proves it, I would say. Rangers still are a great team, but the Bruins are the best I ever have seen, bar none."

Rangers apparently realized the hopelessness of their task of taking four straight games from the National Hockey League champions.

"The odds aren't very attractive, are they?" asked Manager Lester Patrick. "But our morale is still high. I'll admit it sounds pretty hopeless to say we can still take four straight but it can be done."

Lethbridge Meets Jacks In Series

LETHBRIDGE, March 27.—Lethbridge Aces and Raymond Union Jacks, perennial Alberta senior basketball champions, will clash in a three-game series for the honour of Alberta title with the first game here Monday night.

Lethbridge advanced to the finals by trimming Medicine Hat Terriers 64-43 here Saturday. Raymond turned back Magrath Lions 43-39 last Thursday.

Badminton Champs

NEW YORK, March 27.—Dave Freeman of Pasadena, Cal., and Mary Whittemore of Boston, captured the men's and women's United States badminton singles championships Saturday night.

Guldahl Winner

GREENSBORO, N.C., March 27.—Ralph Guldahl of Maddison, N.Y., United States open champion, won the $5,000 Greensboro open golf tournament Sunday with a 72-hole score of 286.

Day Off Cops Louisiana Derby As Favorite Hurt

NEW ORLEANS, March 17—Day Off, fleet colt from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable, won the 18th running of the Louisiana Derby, Saturday, at the Fair Grounds track under the fine riding of the veteran Eddie Arcaro.

The three-year-old stake, run before a crowd of 15,000 was worth $9,510 to the winner. Alms ran second and drew down $2,000 for Mrs. Anthony Pelletert. Petrol Scout, third, won $1,000 for Mrs. C. C. Winfree, and Sir Marlboro took fourth place and $500 for Conroy Smythe of Toronto.

A. G. Tarr, Winnipeg turfman whose Wise Fox won last year to make him with Old Edward II Hereford of Kentucky the only two-time Louisiana Derby winners, had shopped the highly-regarded Coronado here from Tropical Park for the race. Coronado bowed a tendon in his last workout yesterday, and Marvin Miller, stable foreman, decided his horse could not run.

Arnold Henderson is wearing a satisfied grin today. The reason is that his Good Cubs came through like their illustrious namesakes to clip the provincial girls' intermediate basketball championship from Calgary Wetaskiwins here Saturday night. They took the two game series 108 to 41 —a real good score.

CUBS CAPTURE INTERMEDIATE BASKET TITLE

Good Cubs established full right to the illustrious name when they won the Alberta intermediate girls' basketball championship here Saturday night, defeating Calgary Wetaskiwins, 56-23.

This was the final game of a home and home series, the Cubs winning the first game in Calgary by a count of 53-18.

The Good Cubs, coached by Arnold Henderson, opened with a rush Saturday night and Calgary had no doubt of what the final outcome would be. They led 17-4 at the end of the first quarter, 30-12 at the half and 47-24 at half time, made it 38-21 at the end of third quarter and then turned on a scoring spree that saw them add 18 points against two for the Calgarians counted.

Soccer Fandom Gathers Tonight At Memorial Hall

Soccer fans are reminded of the meeting in the Memorial Hall at 8 o'clock Monday night, when the Soccer Council will be asked to meet the management and secretaries of clubs in a get-together to receive instructions regarding the working of the various leagues.

The constitution will be explained and the managers will be asked to point out any difficulties they may see.

Teams are also reminded that they should have all particulars of their teams and their entry fees handed to the Council secretary not later than the end of this week, March 31.

Referees should also get their entry fees in as soon as possible as the examination will be held early next week.

TIGER JACK FOX WINS DECISION

NEW YORK, March 27—Tiger Jack Fox, Spokane, Wash., Negro light heavyweight, outpointed Tiger Terry Warrington of Liverpool, N.S., Canadian 175-pound titleholder, in an eight-round bout here Saturday night.

Fox was down for a nine-count in the sixth after missing a knockout victory through a misunderstanding in the first. Fox crashed a right to Warrington's jaw in the first and the Canadian went down. Apparently the referee and timekeeper got their signals crossed, for after Warrington had been down more than nine seconds, referee Jack O'Sullivan helped him to his feet and the fight continued.

ORIOLES TRIUMPH, 13-4

BALTIMORE, March 27.—Baltimore Orioles closed their hockey season by trouncing Atlantic City Sea Gulls 13-4 last night in an eastern United States amateur hockey league exhibition game.

BOSTON GARDEN, BOSTON, March 27.—Boston Bruins Sunday night won their third straight victory in their best four-of-seven games Stanley Cup playoff series with New York Rangers, beating the Blueshirts 4-1 before same 17,000 fans, largest hockey crowd in Boston history. Actual paid attendance was 16,981 fans.

Gordon Pettinger, Milt Schmidt and Bill Cowley were Bruins marksmen, Schmidt scoring Boston's lone second period goal and netting again in the third period. Walter (Babe) Pratt counted the only Ranger marker on a wild second period shot deflected into the Boston cage by a Bruin defenceman's stick.

The National Hockey League champions outplayed the deep-run runners-up from start to finish as they practically clinched a berth in the Stanley cup finals.

NEIL MISSES OPEN GOAL

Although Rangers pressed hard they made only a few serious threats against Frankie Brimsek, Boston goalie. With the score 3-1, Neil Colville broke his team mates' hearts by missing an open net.

While driving their third nail into Rangers' trophy hopes—this hammering done in regulation time, Pettinger netted the only goal of the game in overtime—the Bruins delighted their record crowd by prolonging their winning streak to 11 games.

Only three penalties were called, two against Murray Patrick for tripping and the other against Alex Shibicky.

The teams will move on to New York for the fourth chapter Tuesday night.

New Element Will Hold Scots Cup

GLASGOW, March 27.—A new name will be inscribed on the historic "old mug"—emblem of supremacy in the Scottish football cup tournament. The three teams still in the competition—Aberdeen, Motherwell and Clyde—have yet to survive the sudden-death tournament which dates back to 1873-74.

Semi-finals were played Saturday. Hibernians, who held the trophy in 1887 and 1902, lost a tight match to Clyde 1-0 while Aberdeen and Motherwell, playing at Ibrox Park, drew 1-1. The latter match will be replayed next Wednesday.

CALGARY CLUB TAKES HONORS IN HOOP SERIES

Gradettes Are Defeated By Buffaloes 42-38 In the Second Game

CALGARY, March 27.—For the first time since 1914, Alberta today will now women's senior basketball champions, Calgary Buffaloes. The Calgarians succeeded Edmonton Grads, provincial titularis for 20 years and frequently world champions, who allowed their farm team, Edmonton Gradettes to carry the colors this year.

Gradettes dropped the provincial final two-game total-point series 82-74. Buffaloes, sparked by Elsie Busch and Elsie MacFarlane, with 18 and 13 points, respectively, won the second game here Saturday night 42-32. They took the first contest a week ago in Edmonton, 44-42.

TO MEET VANCOUVER

Buffaloes now meet Vancouver Shores in the inter-provincial playdowns for the right to travel east in quest of the Canadian championship. The Alberta-British Columbia series will be played in Calgary early next month.

From the moment Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer and president of the Alberta Basketball Association tossed in the first ball, Buffaloes showed a class of game never before uncovered by a Canadian outfit. The team scored first and never lost the lead.

At the end of the first quarter Buffaloes led 12-8, and had their margin cut to a single point in the second frame which ended 20-19.

HITS PEAK

Buffaloes hit their peak in the third, scoring 14 points while holding Gradettes to five and almost duplicated the performance in the final quarter, counting 14 against Gradettes eight.

George Dean sent his Calgarians on a close-checking game that frequently bottled up Clare Hollingsworth's Edmonton stars. Neither Grads nor Gradettes were forced to try long shots from near centre of the floor.

Florence Plante was the spearhead of the visitor's attack. She collected nine points.

Reds Oust Stars

SYRACUSE, N.Y., March 27.—Providence Reds last night knocked Syracuse Stars out of the International American hockey League playoffs with a 3-2 win in the deciding game of their best of three series.

Jean Pusie in Riot Again As Flyers Are Beaten

TULSA, Okla., March 27—Tulsa Oilers defeated St. Louis Flyers, defending American Hockey Association champions, 6-2 Saturday to even their best three-of-five final at one win each.

A near riot occurred in the first period after Jean Pusie, rollicking St. Louis defenceman, rushed Referee Stan Swain, knocking him to the ice, stunned. A police escort was called to accompany Pusie from the rink.

Later William Grahl, league president, ordered indefinite suspension of Pusie, who won't play in next Wednesday's game in St. Louis.

Pusie's match penalty for assaulting Swain came after the St. Louis defenceman had been given a two-minute sentence for slashing.

It was Pusie's third outburst as a St. Louis player. The first drew him a 10-day suspension and a $100 fine for fighting. The second brought a $450 fine in a Wichita, Kas., court for striking a spectator with a chair.

Win by 9-2 Score: Play Brandon Here

BY JACK DEAKIN

FAR west junior hockey champions, rulers of Alberta, British Columbia and Saskatchewan following their straight conquest against Moose Jaw Canucks by a 9-2 score Saturday night, Edmonton Athletic Club's big junior squad advanced into the Abbott cup final.

E.A.C. made a clean sweep of their best-of-five Western Canada semi-final series against the Canucks, Saskatchewan winners. The big Edmonton squad won the first game 4-1, rallied stronger to win the second 6-0 and left little doubt as to their supremacy as a result of their overwhelming victory in a game Canucks battled desperately to win.

Coach Lefty Grove and his starry Clubmen cast their eyes eastward today. Keenly they await the arrival of Brandon Elks, Manitoba and Thunder Bay champions and the dreaded foe E.A.C. must meet in a best-of-five western Canada final which opens here Thursday night. Second game of the series is also scheduled here with the third game probably scheduled for Winnipeg's Amphitheatre.

CANUCK'S DESPERATE

It was Edmonton's game after eight minutes of the first period. Canucks made a desperate bid in the early minutes, and drew first blood, but once underway near the halfway mark, the Edmonton juniors rolled the hemp for four tallies. Canucks were held scoreless in the second while Edmonton jumped their margin by four tallies and matched the one Canucks got in the third session which was robust and replete with scrappy hockey.

Coach Grove revamped his second string Saturday. Elmer Kreller, however, held down his regular pivot berth, but he was flanked by Mike Patrick and Bob David, with Bud Foley taking his turn on the ice as utility.

Patrick had a big night. The big right winger tied pivot ace George Agar of the first string for points, but led all goal-getters. Patrick blazed three shots by Johnny Jones in the Canuck goal and rounded out his total for four points, getting an assist. Agar, turning in a neat job of setting up the goals, garnered himself four assists.

CARSE'S LUCK OUT

Next in line for points were Bobby Carse, probably the outstanding player on the ice, Kreller, Chad and Bud Foley. They each got two points. Carse getting two goals and also rated hard luck honors for he missed the breaks on at least four more tries which had goals labelled all over them. Chad, bursting loose on many speedy dashes, made two of them good while Foley got a goal and an assist. Kreller, like Agar, was setting up neat plays and rated two assist points. Dave Farmer, veteran defence ace, was the other E.A.C. marksman with one goal.

Canucks opened up more in Saturday's performance and as a result provided a better game for the 1,500 fans in attendance. The fast fading Saskatchewan champions scored goals from the initial face-off. Their sudden attack instead of their persistent defensive play, netted them the first tally. Metka drilled home Grieve's pass for a goal not too well earned.

Slow in starting, the first string of Agar, Chad and Carse, settled down and in two clever raids, Agar leading them both, E.A.C. tied up the score and jumped into the lead. Chad tallied the first and Carse the second.

FOLEY AND PATRICK

Late in this frame Foley and Patrick combined for goals. Foley scored the first from Patrick and then reversed the order of scoring as they paired their mates to a 4-1 lead.

Three penalties, two to Canucks and one to E.A.C. all in the same time gave Edmonton the break for an early second period goal. Carse lifted the shot and Agar again set up the play.

Farmer's hot drive on an E.A.C. power play was too much for Jones to handle, and the shot rebounded off Jones' glove into the cage. Kreller had passed back to Farmer as E.A.C.'s took up their position for the power play. Jones lost more of the lucky horseshoe charm three minutes later and Chad netted one of his tallies for the four-goal scoring rout was over at 10 minutes with Patrick finishing off smartly on Kreller's play.

Canucks were first to wave high sticks in the third as tempers flared. Dalrymple and Wickens roughed it up and immediately Agar took a trip to the sin bin for boarding. It was while E.A.C. were shorthanded that Les Walter steamed in on Dewar to score Canucks' second goal. Ken Gunter, another high sticker, got the gate.

Patrick completed his three-star performance, again combining on Agar's pass on a breakaway and with only two minutes to play, the scoring thunder was heard no more.

Hergesheimer clinched the game in the 14th minute.

Montreal Royals Lead Senior Series

MONTREAL, March 27.—Not before St. Jerome had thrown a scare into the Quebec senior champion's weakened lineup did Montreal Royals pull from behind for an 8-7 overtime victory that gave them a two-game lead in the best-of-five series with the intermediate titlists to declare the province's representative in Allan Cup playdowns.

A crowd of about 4,000 saw St. Jerome recover from their 6-1 licking in the first contest and hold a 5-1 advantage midway through the second period. They surrendered the lead when a pair of penalties paved the way for Royals to ram in four goals in a minute and 13 secs., but the outcome was in doubt until Pete Morin notched the tie-breaker with seconds remaining of an overtime session.

Believe It Or Not — — — By Robt. Ripley

"FAREWELL to SPORT" by PAUL GALLICO

Pros Move In On Money

CHAPTER XI (Concl.)

MONEY was needed more and more as the tennis stars suddenly discovered that there was a recket going on and that if the scales were unbalanced as to sharing the profits, it was against them. The tennis clubs, in addition to publicity and prestige, were hauling in gate receipts. The players' expenses began to pick up, and it became increasingly expensive to entertain them. But even with the most they could make, chisel, or hornswoggle out of amateur tennis, the players never even approached any kind of percentage of the take for which their drawing power was responsible.

The Lawn Tennis Association held a power over them that was practically absolute in spite of the fact that these men and women were amateurs and the association was ostensibly and actually guarding their amateurism jealously.

Gallico

For it was obvious that if a player proved recalcitrant and suggested that he did not care to journey all the way to Maquepoisette to compete in the annual Maquepoisette invitation tournament (and besides, their liquor was lousy), he might find that when the really important (socially) invitation tournaments came along, tournaments that meant a week of high living in the utmost luxury in exclusive country-club surroundings with free meals, free drinks, free laundry (those white pants), free everything, his name might be missing from the list. Or, worse still, he might be ignored when it came time to select the squad for the Davis Cup trials.

The Tennis Association's solocitude for the amateurism of its players was in part an honest desire to keep the sport reasonably clean and amateur, but in equal part a cool, out-and-out business proposition. Tennis more than any other sport at the time was threatened by professionalism, and the threat hit right to the wallet.

PLAYERS GOT LITTLE

There had been a few tennis professionals, teachers of the game attached to clubs, but they rarely appeared in public. The Tennis Association had the game and the racket completely to itself on a wonderful basis. It, or rather the member clubs, took all the swag. The players who drew the money got nothing, or at least as little as it was possible to give them.

But along came, first, C. C. Pyle, a high-pressure promoter, and cleaned up on the professional tennis tour of Suzanne Leglen with Mary K. Browne as a foil, and later a former gymnasium attendant and rubber by the name of Bill O'Brien went into partnership with Bill Tilden, organized the first professional tennis in America, and became its first real promoter. He was able to offer, not the unknown racket-slingers and instructors of the former professional tennis world, but the very stars who had once drawn the crowds as amateurs: Tilden, Richards, Hunter, Kinsey, Snodgrass, Kozeluh, Nusslein, Vines, Stoefen, Bell, Barnes, George Lott, and one or two of the Frenchmen.

Professional tennis tours simply coined money. The stars were handsomely paid, the promoter made a nice profit. The matches were brilliantly staged, punctual, colorful, completely honest, and played under conditions which gave the paying public the best of it. The professionals had cut in on the sweet and easy and lucrative racket of the amateur outfit.

The U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, composed for the most part of a few near-sighted antiques in Hoover collars, wasn't smart enough to open the doors as the Golf Association had done and stage an Open Championship in which the best professionals and the best amateurs meet in a common tournament, the pro taking his winnings in cash, the amateur his in plate. Because it meant sharing the swag they fled panic-stricken or turned and fought the professionals. How panic-stricken and absurd they were is indicated by an incident that occurred a summer or so ago after Ellsworth Vines had turned professional, when officials ordered him tossed out of the marquee at Forest Hills during a national championship.

THE SACRED BADGERS

As an amateur, Vines had drawn thousands of dollars through the turnstiles at Forest Hills and had further sacrificed many years to the thankless job of Davis Cup play. But when he became a professional, or, as we used to put it, "turned square," and began to reap some of the financial benefits of his work and skill, be became a pariah, not fit to be in the same inclosure with amateurs. Wow! It was ridiculously easy to read their sacred tuppenny minds—if all of the stars turned professional, no more big gates, no more importance, no more social prestige, no more pictures in the paper. And in the meantime they had their clubs and, above all, that big stadium on their hands.

The tennis-players themselves, with a few exceptions, very quickly took their cues from the people who were patronizing and promoting them and learned how to be snobs, bores, boors, and general pains in the neck. Most of them were of the new generation, with no idea how to evaluate and accept the publicity and adulation that were showered upon them.

Many of them felt that when they were accepted into the circle of the tennis crowd they had come up in the world, and so they modeled their attitudes and manners upon those of their hosts, which for the most part were bad. They came to look upon themselves as rather exceptional creatures, which none of them were; outside of being able to play tennis, they were for the most part a set of pretty dull young men and women.

Tournament tennis is exacting. To remain in the select circle you had to be a winner. To be a winner you had to play all the time, winter and summer, at home and abroad. It left very little time for intellectual development. The phrase "tennis bum" was coined by George Lott, an amateur star who later became a professional. It described trenchantly and graphically the young men caught in the toils of the tennis-social racket, wasting some of the best years of their lives for the benefit of what, examined over the record of the past ten or twelve years, seems to have been a worthless and useless crew. I feel somehow that I am going to be able to bear up rather well, away from tennis-players, clubs, and officials.

PUNCH WITH HIM

Have you ever wanted to probe into a fighter's mind, to find out what his mental reactions are as he slaughters an opponent? Have you ever wondered if he felt any pity for an opponent staggering helplessly before him? These are some of the things Gallico tells you about in the next installment of "Farewell to Sport." He gives an arresting picture of the men who fight for the living.

Scuttle Lethbridge 4-2 To Sweep Series

CALGARY, March 27. — Sadness crept into Kimberley Dynamiters camp as the newly-crowned Alberta-British Columbia senior hockey champions faced the western Canada finals against Port Arthur Bearcats with possible loss of three key players, taken suddenly ill with the 'flu.

Bad news broke less than 15 hours after Dynamiters, 1936 Allan Cup winners, knocked Lethbridge Maple Leafs out of the playoffs with a 4-2 triumph for their third straight win in the best-of-five western Canada semi-final series.

Even if the two centremen, Hugo Mackie and Gordon Wilson, and the defence stalwart, veteran Harry Brown, are up and around when the final series starts it is likely their effectiveness will be lessened considerably.

FINALS AT CALGARY

First two of the western final best-in-five series will be played in Calgary Wednesday night and Saturday night, Lloyd Turner, manager of the Calgary Arena, announced last night. Scene of the third and remaining games, if necessary, will be announced later.

In a smart display of heads-up hockey injected by the will-to-win for a "great guy," their coach, "Swede" Hornquist who went to bed with the 'flu Saturday, the B.C. titlists, starring Goalie Ken (King) Campbell had little trouble pushing 11 tired Leafs, who lacked spirit, aside.

Big defenceman Brown, most effective rear-guard on the ice, and Crafty Hugo Mackie, both veterans of the 1936 champions, each scored a goal and got an assist. Wilson, the rangy 21-year-old pivot, and Chris Sorenson, former professional with Calgary Tigers and Portland Buckaroos, bagged the other Kimberley counters.

STEWART STARS

A rushing defenceman, Kenny Stewart, outstanding Leaf star, single-handed scored both Leafs goals.

The Lethbridge squad, Alberta Senior League leaders all season, lost the first two games by scores of 5-3 at Nelson last Tuesday and 4-2 at Lethbridge, Thursday. They faded in the series largely due to tiredness following their siege of the 'flu in the Drumheller Miner Alberta finals and lack of fire as they reached their 49th game of the year. It was Kimberley's 21st encounter and at a time when they were riding at peak form.

Lack of finish around the net, inability to overcome Kimberley back-checking, misfortune of penalties in the late stages and Campbell's superb performance minimized Leafs' chances. Then Andy Young was beaten on two long shots and when he was pulled out of the goal in the last two minutes to give Leafs another forward, Brown clinched the issue.

Kimberley, never behind in the scoring column in the series, took an early lead. Brown engineered the play for Mackie's goal. Three minutes later Stewart of Leafs equalized as he skated around Kimberley's goal and backhanded the disc past Campbell. Wilson put Kimberley up by sinking a long hard shot from just over the blueline.

SORENSON GOT WINNER

In the middle fram Chris Sorenson scored the winning goal. He took Mackie's passout in his own zone, soloed down to beat Young when the latter moved too slowly to cover, making the count 3-1 for Kimberley.

Stewart again finished off a fine display of stick wizardry, fooling two Kimberley defencemen and two forwards, to work in for a low drive that skimmed under Campbell's stick.

Late in the third period Bill Burnett of Kimberley missed a penalty-shot which was awarded when Jimmy McIndoe tripped Thomas Lamack. In the last two minutes Brown snared the rubber from a six-man Leaf attack, skated into the clear and let a slow centre-ice shot drift into the empty Leaf goal.

Verdun Juniors Advance In East

MONTREAL, March 27.—Verdun Maple Leafs wore the Quebec junior hockey crown for the second year in succession after turning aside Quebec Castors.

Perth eliminated Verdun in the playdowns last year.

PORT ARTHUR TAKES SERIES WITH 3-2 WIN

Move into Final Against Kimberley, Beating Saskatoon Club

SASKATOON, March 27.—Port Arthur Bearcats advanced to the western Canada senior hockey final by defeating Saskatoon Quakers 3-2 here Saturday night to sweep a best-of-three series with two straight wins. The Thunder Bay champions won the first game 4-2.

Bearcats will meet Kimberley Dynamiters in the final. Dynamiters reached the final by winning three straight over Lethbridge Leafs, Alberta champions.

Before 5,300 fans Saturday night, Hugh O'Leary and Norm Wright scored three goals in four minutes of the second period after Quakers had opened the scoring earlier in the same session. Bearcats watched their checks closely in the third and Saskatoon was able to score only once.

O'Leary, Port Arthur captain, scored first on an individual play and bagged a second after taking a forward pass from Edgar Laprade, 18-year-old centre who also started the play that enabled Wright to get the other Port Arthur goal.

Cliff Hulme tallied for Saskatoon on a pass from "Red" Goble and Jonsson added Quakers' third period counter after picking up the rebound of Ab Welsh's drive.

O'Leary also scored in the close-checking first period but the goal was not counted. The Port Arthur ace beat Goalie Howie Dinsley after taking a pass from Joe MacArthur through the Quaker defence. The officials ruled the pass was offside.

ITALO-FRENCH COLONY ISSUE THRUST AHEAD

Democracies Seek Line Of Resistance To German Expansion

LONDON, March 27—Premier Mussolini thrust the Italo-French colonial issue to the front Sunday while the western European Democracies still sought a common line of resistance to German expansion.

These were the chief developments of another nervous weekend:

1—Mussolini served his long-awaited demands on France, mentioning Tunisia, Djibouti and the Suez canal as the problems. Official quarters in both Paris and London interpreted his speech as "conciliatory."

2—The Madrid defence council announced negotiations for surrender of Republican Spain to General Franco had collapsed. The Nationalists opened a major offensive on the Cordoba front in southwest Spain and warned other offensive would start unless there was an unconditional surrender.

REPLACED HITLER

Mussolini replaced Reichfuehrer at least temporarily in the spotlight in Europe's posture. Addressing veterans of Italian Fascism in a celebration of the 20th anniversary of the founding of the first Fascist combat squad, he was seen as favoring "no more open for a settlement with France.

Although Il Duce spoke in aggressive tones, he made no mention of Corsica and Nice. Italians had included these parts of France in their clamor for concessions.

Mussolini, however, warned the democracies any attempt to break the Rome-Berlin axis was "childish." He added it would "counter-attack at all points" against any coalition against it.

But nervous Paris and London grew comfort from his remarks, especially liking his statement that Fascism "Considers a long period of peace necessary to safeguard Europe and the development of European civilization."

Some interpretations were that he was open to offers whereby Italy would "take no initiative whatever until our sacred rights are settled."

SEEK SETTLEMENT

Informed observers predicted Britain would try to arrange a settlement between France and Italy without delay.

1—Italians living in Tunisia would be given guaranteed minority rights.

2—Italy would be guaranteed an increased share, if not control, of the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad.

3—Italy would share in the control of the Suez canal, British, French and Egyptian directorship which she considers vital to her African possessions.

There were unofficial predictions Britain, having failed to bring Poland into a projected anti-aggression declaration, might let the issue pass and decide only to fight if Hitler turned westward against either France, Switzerland, Belgium or the Netherlands.

Poles were nervous, fearing Hitler next might take over Pomorze, the formula Britain used to bring Poland into the war.

Although bright sunshine prevailed over the week-end to bring out hordes of Sunday strollers who indulged in that spring pastime of picking pussy willows, temperatures remained moderately cool, the mercury climbing only five degrees over the freezing mark to a reading of 37 above. Monday morning was frosty, the red columns dipping to a low of 16 above at 6:30 and rising to only 23 at 8:30 a.m.

Fair and moderately cold is the forecast for Monday, sunshine and clear and calm weather evidently failing to impress the weather prophets.

Temperatures in the near north remained relatively cold, varying from zero to 28 above, while in the far north they showed a range of from 28 below at Aklavik to two below at Norman.

Hungary, Slovakia To Settle Disputes

BUDAPEST, March 27.—Hungary and Slovakia opened negotiations today to settle the frontier dispute which caused a three-day conflict on the land and in the air last week.

A commission gathered in Budapest to fix a new line dividing Hungary's regained province of Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) from the new state of Slovakia.

Eleven victims of a Hungarian air raid Friday at Iglo, Slovakia, were buried yesterday, the day following the end of the border hostilities.

Germany was regarded as an interested party as the negotiators convened. Slovakia's economy is under German military protection and the frontier finally agreed upon will be guaranteed by Germany under her 25-year pact with Slovakia.

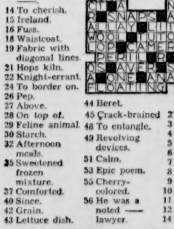

Hungary may ask for more territory than her troops occupied in last week's fighting with Slovak forces because she has indicated she wants Ethnic racial considerations followed in certain other sections.

HAIRDRESSERS REGULATED BY LEGISLATION

Bill Provides For Governing Board Of Four—Rules Set Out

Setting up of a board of four to regulate the hairdressing business in this province, but without authority to govern prices, is provided for in a bill introduced into the Alberta legislature by Fred C. Anderson, S.C., Calgary.

The proposed board would be composed of one person appointed by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry and three elected by the Hairdressers' Association of Alberta.

First members of the board shall be appointed by the lieutenant-governor-in-council within 30 days after passing of the act and shall serve for one year. All subsequent elective members shall be elected by the association in such manner as the association may decide.

CERTIFICATE

Any person now engaged in hairdressing may become a member of the association upon production of a health certificate and payment of association fees.

Certificates will be issued by the board establishing the right of the holder to engage in the occupation.

The board is empowered to issue special certificates for any branch or branches of hairdressing upon proof of skill. It will be unlawful for any holder of a special certificate to engage in any other branch of hairdressing other than the branch or branches for which the certificate is issued.

APPRENTICESHIPS

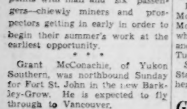

Students must register with the board and receive permission to serve a two-year apprenticeship. Permit cards will be issued to apprentices. Before writing examinations, apprentices must show they have worked 1,000 hours under direct supervision of qualified persons.

The board is authorized at any time to require production of a health certificate and is given authority under stated conditions to revoke certificates, special certificates or permit cards.

The act declared that it is unlawful for any person to carry on at the same time and in the same building both the occupation of a hairdresser in whole or in part and the occupation of teaching students hairdressing. Examinations must be held at least four times annually.

Nothing in the act shall be construed as prohibiting or limiting the service or practice of barbers or manicurists working under a licensed barber.

A section of the act declares that no person shall advertise that hairdressing or any branch of hairdressing is being carried on or set out in any way, any price to be asked for hairdressing.

Al Brown, Mackenzie Air Service, was northbound Monday for Yellowknife and intermediate points with mail and six passengers—chiefly miners and prospectors getting in early in order to begin their summer's work at the earliest opportunity.

Grant McConachie, of Yukon Southern, was northbound Sunday for Fort St. John in the new Barkley-Grow. He is expected to fly through to Vancouver.

Edmonton airport was the butt of several stories in other provincial centres last Friday when it was necessary to cancel TCA flights to and from the city because of the large quantity of water on this city's landing field.

One of the best of the many stories was one which was told at Lethbridge: "Flying from the Edmonton airport has been suspended until fishing operations are completed. One fisherman took a boatload of whitefish off the main runway Friday morning," said one of the reports received in the south.

Experience this year is a new one and due to abnormally warm weather after exceptionally heavy snows, the airport manager, Jimmy Bell states, the condition is not apt to arise again. Arrangements for draining the runways have already been made and next year the snow will be ploughed off at the first sign of a thaw.

Captain Bell announced that after 2 p.m. Monday all skі-equipped planes would operate from Cooking Lake. Slushy condition of the airport runways here no longer present time make it unsuitable for either ski or wheel equipped aircraft. FLOODLIGHTS FOR STADIUM NOW PROPOSED

Lighting Would Provide For Night Rugby Games At Clarke Field

City commissioners will recommend to council at tonight's meeting that floodlighting be installed at Clarke Stadium this summer to permit rugby football games to be played at night.

Edmonton Boosters' club has reported to commissioners that other members of the western conference have installed lighting as it is considered large crowds will attend night games than afternoon games.

$3,300 COST

Cost of the installation is estimated at $3,300 to $3,500 and operation at $1.80 an hour.

City council is asked by the Jasper Highway committee of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce to assist in promoting improvements to both Jasper National Park and the Edmonton-Jasper highway.

Council will hear a brief report from commissioners on the 1939 estimate for the airport but is expected to refer it to a special meeting later in the week.

All the telephones will be in service by the first week in May and the cut-over from the old instruments will be made about the middle of May.

Varsity Labs Are Kept Busy With Analyses

Water, milk, medicines, liquor and narcotics are among the many commodities tested in the industrial laboratories of the provincial analyst, located in the power house, University of Alberta campus. Articles analyzed range from drinking water to the intestinal organs of suicides.

Checking of poison cases comprises one of the most important duties of the analyst, who must not only be able to determine what poison has been used but in many cases whether the victim has committed poison.

About 5,000 articles are analyzed every year in the laboratories. An important branch of the work, and one that has been growing steadily in recent years, is the analyzing of ores from the north to determine if metals other than gold or silver are present in them.

Vital Statistic Report Reveals Edmonton Leader

In Calgary there were 142 births, 59 deaths and 34 marriages. Lethbridge had 46 births; 21 deaths and 11 marriages. Medicine Hat registered 24 births, eight deaths and 11 marriages.

In 67 cities and towns in Canada having a population of 10,000 and more there were 8,615 births during February a total of 6,515 births, 4,705 deaths and 2,295 marriages as against 6,837 births, 4,149 deaths and 2,273 marriages in February of last year.

PREMIER RAPS UNITY SPEAKER FOR REMARKS

ments of the trade and industry department, the oil development, the new adjustment legislation and the handling of the farmers' problems.

He asked if the Unity speaker knew these things or "whether his absence from the school and city" was responsible.

The premier asserted his confidence that the people would not be influenced by the twaddle of the unity speaker because they knew "the cause of unity" and the need of being delivered from bondage.

The Premier declared that thoroughness was essential, even though it brings its own difficulties.

He was assisted at the service by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry and provincial secretary.

The service was sponsored by the Thorkenskold Social Credit Group, of the Armena district, 12 miles from Camrose and by " A Friend from Edmonton."

The group suggested as a theme for the service, "thoroughness".

FORSAKING PRAYER

During the portion of the service devoted to the "call to prayer" the premier declared that "Christian people of today are rapidly losing their spiritual power and uplift because they are forsaking the assembling of themselves together from time to time in prayer. Whether they know it or not this is a fact. If you doubt this, stop a moment and ask yourself the question: Am I spiritually stronger today than a year ago? If not what is the cause? Is it because you have drifted from prayer and the fellowship of other Christians?

Have you lost your fellowship with Christ? I do not hesitate to say that what we need is the mutual helpfulness of kindred spirits in tune with the God of Heaven. Will you not join us tonight?"

Continuing, the premier declared "Is it not peculiarly strange, my friends, that people have drifted so far away from faith in God and the old time religion? Our modern drift is not getting us anywhere. Surely, then, we have no right to complain when things do not seem to run as smoothly as they used to run. We ought to know the reason for it. We are not trusting God as we did formerly. We are not really praying as we ought."

ARE SLOW

Mr. Manning: "Mr. Aberhart, it is strange that people are so slow to assume the attitude of mind and of heart that restores to them that calm peace of mind and strength that they formerly had."

The Premier here said that "Yes, it is strange. It is almost surprising how coldly indifferent and pessimistic some have become. I am sure you would hardly believe that anyone would take the time to write me such letters of dissuasion and discouragement regarding this meeting today if you could see them. You would almost think that I was doing a crime when I ask people to unite in prayer together."

Mr. Manning: "It certainly calls for much patience in trying to help people like today. You remember how Moses lost his patience with Israel as he tried to lead them into the promised land?"

Premier Reid, "Yes, I do. I sometimes wonder if Moses had anyone who thought it their duty to tell him that because of those ancient days urging him not to continue to bother himself about Israel; warning him that he may have less success so why waste all this effort?"

Mr. Manning: "Do you mean to tell us that you have had letters discouraging you in this great effort of yours to get people to turn to God?"

The Premier replied that, "I am sorry that I have to say 'yes' and I shall tell you why."

DON'T UNDERSTAND

"A great many of these people do not understand the basis upon which we should pray. One tells me that the people cannot pray if they wanted to, because they are too worldly and sinful. They are too selfish and self-centred. They cannot pray, so my correspondent maintains."

Later in speaking on the same subject, the Premier declared that the people who could not be united in prayer had in his opinion a superiority complex regarding others and feel that they know it all. Nine times out of 10 they are merely expressing the thoughts of their own heart. I mean that when they tell me that most of the people have lost faith in God and in the old time religion. They mean that they have lost theirs."

Considering he said that "Some are rather pleased when they say these people are madly chasing after worldly pleasures, cards and dancing and they have no time for a prayer meeting. They seem to think that by this means they have put a quietus on our whole endeavor."

The Social Credit band, under H. A. Bullock, assisted at the service.

The Premier pointed out that a good theme song was still being sought and he read the words of several that had been sent in.
